comprehensive overview of Southern California's most experimental architecture showcasing the highly expressive work of famed architects such as Frank Gehry and Thom Mayne as well as the best of the new guard. This is the first critical examination and history of what was first identified as the L.A. School in the 1990s, which has influenced much of American architecture in the last twenty-five years. This expansive new book examines contemporary Southern California architecture from 1987 to the present, exploring its experimental nature, sculptural tendency, and exciting evolution. This volume complements a major exhibition at the Museum of Contemporary Art, Los Angeles, and is part of the Getty Research Institute exhibition initiative, Los Angeles Architecture 1940-1990: Contributions by leading architectural historians, coupled with a stunning collection of images, present recent works in terms of sculpturalism and urbanism and consider the impact of the history and environment of Los Angeles as well as the creative and working processes.

Living West Sam Lubell, 2009. A dense concentration of design talent, uniquely varied topography, and one of the world's most pleasant climates have made southern California a crucible of architectural innovation. There, forward-looking clients respond to dramatic, modern interpretations of form and site that capitalize on natural light and magnificent ocean views, perch delicately on steeply graded land, or maximize privacy on a sliver of a city lot. Thirty of the best designs by the most creative firms portray the diversity of southern California's architecture. Sam Lubell draws examples from Montecito to San Diego and the arid conditions of Joshua Tree to illustrate the wide range of responses to geography, budget, and space.

Steven Ehrlich Architects Steven Ehrlich, 1998. Steven Ehrlich Architects. One of an emerging group of important young architects from Southern California, Steven Ehrlich explores the vitality of serene yet kinetic forms and spaces, the richness of texture and materials, and the relationship of architecture to community. The work of Steven Ehrlich Architects is distinctly modern yet informed by the simplicity and directness of vernacular forms and a vigorous sensitivity to the urban conditions of the Pacific Century. Their designs represent the intersection of cultural influences as diverse as traditional African mud construction, the ancient Chinese discipline of feng shui, and California's Latino community.
