African Environment:

African Environments and Resources L. A. Lewis, L. Berry, 2012-07-26 First published in 1988 this work provides a comprehensive picture of the range of physical environments in Africa focusing upon those characteristics and issues central to the management of environmental resources Beginning with an overview of the geographical and environmental history of Africa the authors also provide to the evolution of the management of resources and then details a broadly defined ecosystem approach in which major environmental resource issues are identified and addressed in the tropical rainforest the Savannah dry forest the arid and semi arid areas the highlands and the extra tropical zones of Northern and Southern Africa The book is designed to contribute to a better understanding of African environmental and resource management problems and this reissue should be welcomed by students of Africa and of environmental resource management problems in general

African Environmental Ethics Munamato Chemhuru, 2019-05-30 This book focuses on under explored and often neglected issues in contemporary African environmental philosophy and ethics Critical issues such as the moral status of nature African conceptions of animal moral status and rights African conceptions of environmental justice African relational Environmentalism ubuntu African theocentric and teleological environmentalism are addressed in this book It is unique in so far as it goes beyond the generalized focus on African metaphysics and African ethics by exploring how these views might be understood differently in order to conceptualize African environmental ethics Against the background where environmental problems such as pollution climate change extinction of flora and fauna and global warming are plain to see it becomes useful to examine how African conceptions of environmental ethics could be understood in order to confront some of these problems facing the whole world This book will be of value to undergraduate students graduate students and academics working in the area of African Philosophy African Environmental Ethics and Global Ethics in general African Environment, Problems and Perspectives Paul Richards, 1975 African Environment, 1977 African Environments and Resources L. A. Lewis, L. Berry, 2012 5 The dry areas Introduction The deserts myth and reality in environmental conditions Important environmental processes in dry areas Patterns of resource use in dry areas 6 The savanna and dry forest environments Introduction Climate Other factors in the savanna and dry woodland ecology Farming and grazing in the savanna an overview East Africa a case study of the savanna Conclusion 7 The highlands Introduction The highlands of eastern and central Africa Characteristics of highland environments Rural population in the highlands The Southern African Environment Sam Moyo, Michael Sill, 2014-06-03 The Southern African Environment provides a comprehensive and up to date description of the countries of the SADC region Angola Botswana Lesotho Malawi Mozambique Namibia Swaziland Tanzania Zambia and Zimbabwe The area is one of rapid political economic and social change and each of the 10 country profiles in this book provides full and detailed information on the physical and human geography environmental problems resource base institutional structures for environmental management and the issues associated with institutional change

Each profile was drafted by local environmental experts and is based on extensive fieldwork and research originally commissioned by the Dutch government. The report provides a unique synthesis of this richly endowed but troubled region.

Social History & African Environments William Beinart, JoAnn McGregor, 2003. The recent explosion of interest in African environmental history has resulted in a rich new literature. This collection focuses on the social and cultural dimensions of the field, revealing the importance of standing back from today's controversies over the state of the African environment to explore the historical contexts in which knowledge and ideas about nature conservation and landscape were formed. African Environmental and Human Security in the 21st Century Helen E. Purkitt, 2014-05-14. Environmental and human security issues are vital national security interests in African states because most citizens are engaged in daily struggles to survive. Chronic and worsening resource scarcities and degradations fuel these individual struggles along with political conflicts among different groups vying to control and benefit from scarce resources. Thus many observers agree on the importance of expanding the concept of national security in African states, but there is no consensus yet on the optimal approach for studying or improving environmental and human security problems. While there are books on human and environmental security, few past works focus on Africa or address the interests and concerns of researchers and practitioners working in such diverse fields as development security or environmental science. Even though the military is one of the most influential institutions in African countries, no published work to date has addressed issues related to when, how, or if national and foreign militaries should be involved in promoting human and environmental security. African Environmental and Human Security in the 21st Century fills this void by combining ten original studies that discuss important non-traditional security issues facing countries located in each region of Africa. This volume reflects a shared assumption that one must have case-specific knowledge, use multidisciplinary and multi-level conceptual frameworks, and have an appreciation of feasible and desirable public policies in order to understand and effectively address complex non-traditional security concerns. This is the first book to address a broad array of African environmental and human security issues. The book is intended to be used by beginning students, seasoned researchers, novice and experienced practitioners. The case studies expose the reader to past relevant research while also identifying the main causes and consequences of different types of political conflicts fueled by human and environmental security problems. Each study also contains policy lessons, best practices, or recommended future actions. The originality and comprehensiveness of each chapter means that the volume is likely to appeal to a wide range of readers for many years. Despite the diversity of the contributors' backgrounds, many of the conclusions and recommendations use common themes about the complex causes of human and environmental conflicts the need to adopt longer term time frames to evaluate the effectiveness of policy actions and an emphasis on the importance of outside actors providing modest amounts of targeted aid to help Africans manage immediate pressing problems as well Several authors addressed the proper role for outside agencies such as AFRICOM and USAID and provide caveats similar to the thrust of Maxie McFarland's cautionary concluding comments at the ISA panel to wit just because the military is already doing a lot of nontraditional human security type projects in Iraq and Afghanistan and just because the Army and other branches of the military can do this type of activity doesn't mean you want them to do it African Environmental and Human Security in the 21st Century is an important book for African Studies economic development environmental and earth science environmental security ecotourism history human security international relations national security and military Science Collections African Environmental and Human Security in the 21st Century Helen E. Purkitt, 2009 Sub-Saharan Africa Gregory H. Maddox, 2006-03-24 A wealth of information and analysis on the environmental forces that have helped shaped the cultures of the African continent A scholarly reference work that will also appeal to the general reader Sub Saharan Africa sets the story of the African environment within the context of geological time and shows how the continent's often harsh conditions prompted humans to develop unique skills in agriculture animal husbandry and environmental management Part of ABC CLIO's Nature and Human Societies series this book enables readers to better grasp the extent of humanity's effect on our world Of particular interest are the book's sections dealing with the impact of the Biafran famine of the 1960s the Sahelian drought of the 1970s population growth and the ongoing challenges of war and HIV AIDS Crucially the book also shows how despite their relative poverty many African states have coped admirably with rapid urbanization and have developed world class conservation and sustainability programs in order to protect and harness some of the most endangered species in the world The South African Climate William C. Smith, 2007 Examines the works of Frederick Douglass Booker T Washington W E B Du Bois and several other canonical figures to uncover a rich and vital tradition of black environmental thought from the abolition movement through the Harlem Renaissance Provides the first careful linkage of the early conservation movement to black history the first detailed description of black agrarianism and the first analysis of scientific racism as an environmental theory African Environment Paul Richards, Nicola Harris, 1975 The Lie of the Land Melissa Leach, 1996 This work questions the reasoning behind Western images of the environmental destruction taking place in Africa It asks how environmental orthodoxies become established and what the alternative and appropriate approaches for policy making are drawing together and exploring 12 key cases The North African Environment At Risk Will D Swearingen, Abdellatif Bencherifa, 2019-07-11

Deforestation soil erosion desertification air and water pollution loss of wildlife habitat and declining biodiversity are interrelated manifestations of a growing environmental crisis in North Africa that has received relatively little attention from government policymakers and is poorly understood by North African peoples the international development community and scholars In this book a multidisciplinary group of scholars explores the broad range of human activities causing the deterioration of North Africa's fragile environment including population pressure and poverty rapid urbanization intense competition for land and water and mismanagement of natural resources The contributors examine in particular the conflict between economic development and environmental sustainability They analyze the historical roots of current environmental problems the underlying socioeconomic causes potential solutions and differences in environmental policies among various countries This is an insightful portrait of a developing region attempting to reconcile traditional methods of land use with growing demands for resources the exigencies of economic development and the limitations of its natural resource base
