Ageing In Developing Countries:

Ageing in Developing Countries Ken Tout, 1989 The increasing life expectancy seen in developing countries has coincided with massive migrations due to urbanization industrialization and disasters both natural and man made causing acute physical and psychological suffering for many old people and their dependents Tout takes the first in depth look at this phenomenon and proposes a new approach to the special needs of the elderly in developing countries Describing successful national programs already in place for the elderly he highlights lesser known difficulties such as the responsibilities grandmothers may have to assume in the face of heterosexually transmitted AIDS and the consequences of the disintegration of the traditional extended family in countries too poor to provide pension schemes The Ageing and Development Report Judith Randel, Tony German, Deborah Ewing, 2017-07-28 This timely report by HelpAge International sets out to establish some of the key social and political issues affecting older people s lives It marks the first documentation of this information and I feel sure that it will be an important contribution to the growing debate From the Foreword by Gro Harlem Brundtland Director General World Health Organization The world s population is ageing The majority of older people live in the developing world where unprecedented growth in the number of older people has major implications for economies health systems housing working patterns and family relationships The Ageing and Development Report is the first extensive survey of the issues Drawing on HelpAge International s long experience in over 60 countries with contributions from world experts in the field key themes such as community involvement family life health and well being poverty and exclusion gender migration and economic security are addressed Case studies and statistics provide a comprehensive review of the condition of older people in the world s poorest countries The Report argues for a fundamental shift in policy and opinion on ageing to reflect the real economic and social contributions of older people and enable them to retain their independence It will be essential reading for development policy makers and practitioners in governmental and non governmental agencies demographers and gerontologists Population Ageing and Development UNFPA. Population and Development Study Branch. Technical Support Division, 2002 Ageing in Developing Countries M. A. Badry, 1986 Financial Literacy and Ageing in Developing Economies Kshipra Jain, 2023-05-09 This book weaves together current understanding around financial literacy and ageing arguing for the relevance of financial literacy for old age security Building upon on the experiences of ten developing Asian economies with a focus on India the book enters new territory by developing frameworks that identify predictors of financial literacy and a mechanism for its internalization as well as recognising the need for specialized training programs for the older population in order to establish a link between financial literacy and old age security It thus makes a case about the centrality of financial literacy in creating an environment conducive to a dignified ageing experience in this world of shouldering one s own responsibility Going forward the book comprehends financial literacy for India as a skill which enables an individual to decide the suitable avenues to invest savings utilize monetary resources and shape financial decisions aligned with their financial goals in accordance with the dynamic financial economic environment This original volume is a first time attempt to provide an in depth account of financial literacy and its association with savings behavior old age planning wealth accumulation healthcare and wellbeing in older age It also provides a detailed account of various measurement tools used and policy initiatives undertaken across the globe for financial literacy It is an indispensable reference guide for scholars and researchers cutting across multiple disciplines particularly financial and development economics gerontology demography social work psychology and public policy

Population Ageing and International Development Peter Lloyd-Sherlock,2010 Over the next 40 years the number of people aged 60 in the world many of whom live in developing regions will grow by 10 billion What will old age be like for them This original book provides an analysis of links between development population ageing and older people challenging some widely held misconceptions It highlights the complexity of international experiences and argues that the effects of population ageing on development are influenced by policy choices The book will be of interest to a range of academic disciplines including economics gerontology social policy and development studies as well as policy makers and practitioners concerned with developing countries Publisher s description

Aging and Adult Development in the Developing World Frank E. Eyetsemitan,James T. Gire,2003-02-28 Most studies of human development in developing societies have focused on the childhood stage and in a few cases exploration has extended up to adolescence since this age group represents about half the population in developing societies The developed world however is experiencing a surge in the elderly population and this has spurred its study There is growing recognition that studies are needed in order to understand aging in all contexts and to discover how the experience may differ in developing and developed societies In this book the authors discuss the appropriateness or inappropriateness of applying Western theories and perspectives to studies of aging in the developing world The present study critically examines the major theories in the area of aging and adult development covering such domains as the physical psychological and social aspects of aging death and dying and social and public policies Applying the concepts of individualism and collectivism as well as the global and environmental dimensions of the developing world the authors have earmarked the theories that seem suitable only to the developed world and those that appear to be universally relevant

Development in an Ageing World United Nations. Department of Economic and Social Affairs,2007 Greater longevity is an indicator of human progress in general Increased life expectancy and lower fertility rates are changing the population structure worldwide in a major way the proportion of older persons is rapidly increasing a process known as population ageing The process is inevitable and is already advanced in developed countries and progressing quite rapidly in developing ones The 2007 Survey analyses the implications of population ageing for social and economic development around the world while recognising that it offers both challenges and opportunities Among the most pressing issues is that arising from the prospect of a smaller labour force having to support an increasingly larger older population Paralleling increased longevity are the changes in intergenerational relationships that may affect the provision of care and income security for older persons particularly in developing countries where family transfers play a major role At the same time it is also necessary for societies to fully recognise and better harness the productive and social contributions that older persons can make but are in many instances prevented from making The Survey argues that the challenges are not insurmountable but that societies everywhere need to put in place the policies required to confront those challenges effectively and to ensure an adequate standard of living for each of their members while respecting and promoting the contribution and participation of all

Population Ageing Graeme Hugo,1985 International Handbook on Ageing and Public Policy Sarah Harper,Kate Hamblin,2014-08-29 With the collective knowledge of expert contributors in the field The International Handbook on Ageing and Public Policy explores the challenges arising from the ageing of populations across the globe With an expansive look at the topic this com

Population ageing and international development Peter Lloyd-Sherlock,2010-01-20 Over the next 40 years the number of people aged 60 in the world many of whom live in developing regions will grow by 11 4 billion What will old age be like for them This original book provides an analysis of links between development population ageing and older people challenging some widely held misconceptions It highlights the complexity of international experiences and argues that the effects of population ageing on development are influenced by policy choices The book will be of interest to a range of academic disciplines including economics gerontology social policy and development studies as well as policy makers and practitioners concerned with developing countries

The Age of Aging George Magnus,2012-11-27 The year 2008 marks the beginning of the baby boomer retirement avalanche just as the different demographics in advanced and most developing countries are becoming more pronounced People are worrying again that developments in global population trends food supply natural resource availability and climate change raise the question as to whether Malthus was right after all The Age of Aging explores a unique phenomenon for mankind and therefore one that takes us into uncharted territory Low birth rates and rising life expectancy are leading to rapid aging and a stagnation or fall in the number of people of working age in Western societies Japan is in pole position but will be joined soon by other Western countries and some emerging markets including China The book examines the economic effects of aging the main proposals for addressing the implications and how aging societies will affect family and social structures and the type of environment in which the baby boomers children will grow up The contrast between the expected old age bulge in Western nations and the youth bulge in developing countries has important implications for globalization and for immigration in Western countries two topics already characterized by rising discontent or opposition But we have to find ways of making both globalization and immigration work for all for fear that failure may lead us down much darker paths Aging also brings new challenges for the world to address in two sensitive areas the politicization of religion and the management of international security Governments and global institutions will have to take greater responsibilities to ensure that public policy responses are appropriate and measured The challenges arising within aging societies and the demographic contrasts between Western and developing countries make for a fractious world one that is line with the much debated decline of the West The book doesn t flinch from recognizing the ways in which this could become more visible but also asserts that we can address demographic change effectively if governments and strengthened international institutions are permitted a larger role in managing change An Aging World Barbara Boyle Torrey, Kevin G. Kinsella, Cynthia Murray Taeuber, 1987

Intellectual Property Rights and ASEAN Development in the Digital Age Lurong Chen, Fukunari Kimura, 2021-11-17 The trade investment service intellectual property IP nexus remains at the heart of economic development and the main features of which are global value chains GVCs and digitalisation The protection of intellectual property rights IPR has become a critical issue not only for advanced economies but also for emerging markets This edited volume contributes to the debates on IPR protection and economic development from the perspective of Association of Southeast Asian Nations ASEAN member states The book provides insights into the mechanism and evidence on how effective IPR protection will increase economic and social welfare via promoting innovation activities and providing incentives to diffuse knowledge and transfer technologies Written by economists and lawyers from the region these experts share their latest findings and thoughts on how countries in Southeast Asia have been progressively improving IPR protection and increasing the interoperability of different IPR regimes through regional cooperation to facilitate business operations in the context of digital transformation

Aging in the Third World Kevin G. Kinsella, 1988 Ageing and Health World Health Organization. Regional Office for the Western Pacific, WHO Regional Office for the Western Pacific, 2003 This publication considers approaches to health promotion for older people in developing countries in light of population ageing trends focusing on the WHO Western Pacific region Issues discussed include common health problems amongst older people factors which contribute to the prevalence of chronic diseases and disabilities in later life factors which improve health outcomes for older people epidemiology and health promotion and key challenges of health promotion in developing countries The Department of State Bulletin, 1978 The official monthly record of United States foreign policy

Global Food Futures Brian Gardner, 2013-09-26 Global Food Futures presents a highly accessible account of the global food situation up to 2050 tackling the widespread assumption that world agriculture will fail to feed a projected population of 9 billion Aging in the Global South Maria Carinnes P. Alejandria, Subharati Ghosh, Nicolas Sacco, 2018-12-18 This book is a collection of work on aging and development from authors from the global south Aging is steadily evolving as a public health and social crisis for which countries of the global south are ill prepared The forces of development and improved public health services have ensured that human beings live longer But there is enough evidence that such longevity do not commensurate with good health As such many countries of the global south are seeing a booming population who are aging in poor health without the necessary safety net to ensure quality of life This book discusses work from Asia Africa and South America to explore the challenges facing older adults

Topics include aging in institutions living arrangements of older adults food insecurity social isolation end of life migration and policy papers This is the first book to bring together varied perspectives on the situation of older adults and the challenges and opportunities that lie in developing innovative sustainable programs to support elderly care services
