

1. Turn the printer off and unplug the power cord from the back of the printer and the wall outlet.

2. Wait for the printer to cool down for at least 30 minutes before touching the fuser or other hot components.

3. Open the front cover of the printer and locate the fuser assembly. The fuser is a cylindrical component that fuses the toner to the paper.

FUSER ROLLER SERVICE

The fuser roller is a critical component of the printer's fusing system. It is responsible for applying heat and pressure to the paper to permanently bond the toner particles. Over time, the fuser roller can wear out or become contaminated, leading to print quality issues such as streaking or smudging.

FUSER ROLLER HEAD SERVICE

The fuser roller head is the part of the fuser assembly that comes into direct contact with the paper. It is responsible for applying the heat and pressure needed to fuse the toner. If the fuser roller head becomes worn or damaged, it can cause the toner to not fuse properly, resulting in faded or illegible prints.

FUSER CLEANING SYSTEM

The fuser cleaning system is designed to keep the fuser roller head clean and free of toner buildup. It typically consists of a cleaning blade that scrapes the fuser roller head and a cleaning roller that rotates against the fuser roller head. The cleaning system is automatically activated during the printer's power-up sequence and periodically during printing to maintain optimal print quality.
