

"Fun With a Purpose" Welcome Back Daze

Fred V. Perez, Cliff Holt
University of New Mexico

Welcome Back Daze is fun with a purpose — the purpose being to involve students, staff, and faculty in a variety of activities that will help to reduce the initial feeling of impersonalization so prevalent on a large university campus.

This project was initiated in 1978 among three participating campus departments — Intramurals and Campus Recreation, the Student Union, and the Dean of Students Office. It was originally a one-day program called the "Welcome Back Fiesta." The activities included a welcoming address from the President of the University, skydivers, a chili feed, mariachi and blue grass bands, the President's ice cream social, an activities fair, a pep rally, and a dance.

This was a cumbersome schedule for a one-day program, and was a hit-or-miss situation for the students. Only a small percentage of the student body was exposed to the planned activities. The logistics were difficult for the three departments to coordinate.

The project was expanded and is now planned and organized by thirty different campus agencies and departments. This larger planning committee has facilitated more programs and increased awareness of this worthwhile event.

The primary objective is to interest and involve the student population in social, recreational and culinary activities that offer opportunities to interact with fellow students, faculty, staff, and administrators.

Secondary objectives include: development of interdepartmental co-operative efforts; stretching budget resources to their maximum limit through innovation; and developing new ways to involve segments of the non-campus community in a variety of co-sponsored activities.

Among the recreational opportunities are a variety of activities around the swim pool; billiards and indoor golf at the Union; a dunking tank on the mall; campus fun runs; and various ball games.

Social or semi-active events include concerts, fashion shows, skydiving, hot air balloon rides, ethnic dances, old west gunfighter shoot-outs, social dances, and various sporting events.

Culinary events feature an old fashioned southwest chili and watermelon feed, an outdoor bar-b-que, and an ice cream social.

Personal activities include short seminars on time management, study habits, and alcohol abuse. Other featured activities have been academic and career placement fairs, health awareness workshops, and speeches by prominent individuals.

The secondary objectives are achieved in all of the above mentioned activities in a number of ways. For example, the Student Union is very involved with the production of the chili and watermelon feed, the ice cream social, and the bar-b-que. The food servers, who become front line greeters, involve the campus divisions of student personnel, physical resources, police and parking, alumni association, HPER personnel, and key university administrators. Each event involves different greeters; for example, the ice cream social features the President, vice presidents, deans and directors helping to dip and serve. The Alumni Association hosts the bar-b-que, and Student Personnel and other divisions host the chili and watermelon feed.

Additional departments serve as hosts, utilizing still other units for volunteer assistance. For example, the Returning Students Association coordinates the dunking tank activity with the targets being popular faculty members, administrators, and the student government leaders. The Placement Office and the Student Orientation Department co-host the academic and career mart with assistance from most colleges on the campus and major local employers.

The overall budget requirements are also achieved in a variety of ways. The hosting/serving functions by the various divisions at the university significantly reduce labor costs. Many of the necessary products are donated, including: dairies donate over 75 tubs of ice cream; the soda beverage suppliers donate syrup and other products; and a former governor and the Alumni Association each donate half a beef to provide the bar-b-que dinner.

The non-campus community is involved with activities through advertising. A large welcoming billboard is placed in the center of campus listing all of the scheduled activities and a personal welcome message from each sponsor. Private businesses adjacent to the campus form a coalition welcoming the students back with coupon offers and messages promoting the activities. Ads are included in the fine arts series mailers as well as in the campus newspaper. The mayor's office declares one day of the activities as the official "Welcome Back Day to U.N.M."

The rapid rise in popularity of this event can be depicted by the enormous popularity of the small "Lobo Patrol" badges. Initially, this badge was worn by the committee as a simple marketing tool, but it has evolved into a sought-after prestige symbol of involvement in this popular university/community event. It has become common for
