Baboon Mothers and Infants Jeanne Altmann, 2001-08-15 P 40 Reproduction and Fitness in Baboons: Behavioral, Ecological, and Life History Perspectives Larissa Swedell, Steven R. Leigh, 2006-11-25 The editors will address the questions of life history and reproduction by attempting to isolate the various components of reproductive success and fitness in baboons This requires assembling research interests in morphology behavior ecology and endocrinology of the five subspecies of Papio baboons By synthesizing studies of reproduction life history growth parenting ecology mate choice and mating success this volume will shed light on general features of life history traits and reproductive strategies that have made baboons successful These findings have broad applications to understanding the evolution of complex life history adaptations such as those characteristic of other primates and humans in particular Many of the top researchers on the field are contributing to this volume The Myth of Wild Africa Jonathan S. Adams, Thomas O. McShane, 1996 Africa s wildlife heritage is under siege and its worst enemy may be traditional conservation methods The authors tell of new conservation programs that include more Africans in the planning execution and financial benefits of this multi billion dollar business The Promise of Contemporary Primatology Erin P. Riley, 2019-08-19 This book argues for a contemporary primatology that recognizes humans as integral components in the ecologies of primates This contemporary primatology uses a broadened theoretical lens and methodological toolkit to study primate behavior and ecology in increasingly anthropogenic contexts and seeks points of intersection and spaces for collaborative exchange across the natural sciences social sciences and humanities The book begins by exploring the American tradition of anthropology providing historical and disciplinary context for the emergence of field primatology and how it became a part of this tradition It then examines how primatology transformed into a field dominated by evolutionary approaches and highlights how the increasingly anthropogenic environments in which primates live present opportunities to understand primate adaptability at work In doing so it explores how an extended evolutionary approach can help explain behavioral variation in these contemporary environments Focus is then given to the ethnoprimate approach a contemporary approach that provides a pluralistic framework drawing from the natural and social sciences and humanities needed to study human primate coexistence in the Anthropocene Finally the book considers how such a crossing of disciplines can inform primate conservation in the future An important interdisciplinary reassessment this book will be of significant interest to primatologists biological anthropologists and scholars of anthropology more generally as well as evolutionary and conservation biologists Animal Friendships Anne Innis Dagg, 2011-09-01 Research into social behaviour in animals has often focused on aggression yet members of social species are far more likely to interact with each other in a positive way Animal Friendships explores non sexual bonding behaviours in a range of mammalian and avian species Through analysis of factors which trigger and deepen friendships Dagg uncovers a world of intricate and complex social interactions These factors include sources of food formation of coalitions playdates for infants mutual grooming and the apparent pleasure of simple companionship Chapters cover different types of friendship from those between two individuals such as male female or parent offspring friendships to those within family groups and even inter species friendships Not only does the book explore how and why friendships form it also showcases the ingenious field techniques used by researchers enabling the reader to understand the scientific methodology An invaluable read for both researchers and students studying animal social bonding
