Topic- Changing dynamics of Indo-Russia relations in an era of global crisis : Comparative analysis of factors shaping the respective foreign policies towards each other in the 21st century.

By: Mir Abdul Mujeeb

INTRODUCTION

The World has witnessed intense global power rivalries towards the latter end of the previous decade . The narrowing gulf between the global powers in economic ,technological and military domains, has thrown up a multipolar world order characterised by the rise of Asian powers - China and India.While China's determined rise under Xi Jinping has brought it at the cusp of displacing U.S as the reigning superpower of the world, India's ascension in the 21st century and an assertive foreign policy push under the Modi era too hasn't gone unnoticed and needs a detailed examination.Simultaneously the global power scenario has witnessed a retreat of US hegemony symbolised by the setbacks it faced in Syria and more recently in Afghanistan. It is in the shadows of these shifting tectonics that a resurgent Russia led by Vladimir Putin has risen through the ranks creating ripples in the global power scales and setting the stage for a return of a 'Coldwar 2.0 ' confrontation with the West .

The war in Ukraine represents the climax of a series of manoeuvres right from the annexation of Crimea unleashed by Putin led Russia that in view of many political analysts seeks to 'restore the glorious past of the Soviet era' and to counter what Russia calls 'an eastward expansion of NATO'.

Furthermore the ongoing Ladakh standoff conflict between India and China is posing a fundamental challenge to Russia's foreign policy. The China-India standoff at the Line of Actual Control (LAC) in the Himalayas typified by Galwan valley clashes in Ladakh emerged as a serious test for Russia's policy in Asia. Despite Moscow's proximity to Beijing, the Russia-China connection is still far from an alliance relationship. India and China are both strategic partners, so Moscow has been following the situation with a cautious approach toward their border crisis .

Russia can be a key factor to resolve the issue because it has good relations with both India and China. Russia hosted a meeting in June ,2020 with the Chinese and Indian foreign ministers in Moscow as part of the Russia-India-China trilateral grouping (RIC)
