The Challenges of Education in Central Asia Stephen P. Heyneman, Alan J. De Young, 2000-09-05 This book examines the educational challenges in Central Asia comparing them to other former Soviet republics It highlights the region's independence in adopting Western recommendations and stresses the importance of equality and fair historical education The hope is for continued autonomy without compromising universal principles

Education in Central Asia Denise Egéa, 2020-09-14 This book brings together internationally prominent scholars renowned for their work on post-Soviet republics as well as outstanding emerging scholars native of Central Asia in order to discuss the state of education in the Central Asian Republics of Kazakhstan Kyrgyzstan Tajikistan Turkmenistan and Uzbekistan Drawing on their individual contexts and research the authors offer analyses and critiques of some of the social political and economic issues in education in their respective countries and some insights about how local actions engage with the challenges and problems as well as with the possibilities and opportunities they face Since gaining their independence in 1991 the five republics of Central Asia have been undergoing some enormous political social linguistic cultural and economic changes even as we write This collection shows that researchers are increasingly interested in exploring the development of education in this part of the world In these countries education plays a significant role in transitioning from centrally planned to market economies and is seen as the key resource to facilitate entry into the global competitiveness sphere This book will be of particular interest to educators researchers and policy makers engaged in research or with a particular interest in curricula and education systems and reforms and to undergraduate and graduate students studying and researching education in Central Asia or in other post-Soviet contexts

Hidden Challenges to Education Systems in Transition Economies Sue E. Berryman, 2000-01-01 This book provides diagnostic and strategic analysis of the challenges to educational systems in the transition economies of the Eastern and Central Europe and Central Asia At the outset of the transition many of these countries educational systems had solved problems such as limited access gender inequalities and poor quality outputs that still plague other regions of the world Many policy makers believed that education was not a problem sector in transition countries This report presents originally unforeseen results which suggest that deep and broad problems are emerging in the sector and were threatening many countries achievements in education The region's education systems which once were a good fit with the planned economies and authoritarian political systems are proving to be a poor fit with market economies and more open political systems Inequities in learning opportunities are increasing at a time when human capital is becoming ever more important in the region's recovery and development The danger is that in some countries of the region these education problems left unchecked could threaten to create a vicious circle that will make poverty and social exclusion a powerful generational inheritance

The Political Economy of Education in Central Asia Naureen Durrani, H  l  ne Thibault, 2024-02-15 This open access book is intended as an original contribution to the conversation on the role and challenges of education in Central Asia to promote social cohesion by looking at Kazakhstan Tajikistan and Uzbekistan Examining education challenges within the countries wider historical social political and cultural context the contributions explore existing discourses concerning national identity religion language gender inclusion internationalisation of education and non state actors through a Political Economy Analysis PEA lens With the understanding that education is both a powerful mechanism of social reproduction in societies and a driver of social change the book attempts to promote political economy analysis of education as a helpful analytical tool for educational debates and reform agendas in the region and thus will be a valuable resource for policymakers practitioners and scholars in this region and beyond
