Changing The Rules Technological Change International Competition And Regulation In Communications:

Changing the Rules Robert W. Crandall, Kenneth Flamm, 2001-06-29 Since 1971 competition has begun to replace regulation as a governing force in the telecommunications industry The breakup of the national telephone monopolies technological advances and the worldwide network in telecommunications have brought a revolution in the telecommunications equipment and services industries These changes have forced legislators and regulators to rethink public policy toward communications The papers in this book were first presented at a conference organized by Robert Crandall and Kenneth Flamm pulling together a group of industry professionals and scholars to address the far reaching implications of the upheaval in the communications industry The contributors analyze the effects of this increasing competition on standardization technical innovation and international rivalry Changing the Rules offers possible policy options and analyzes their potential effects on the future market structure and the competitive positions of the U S computer and communications industries

Changing the Rules Robert W. Crandall, Kenneth Flamm, 1989 Eleven contributions first presented at a conference in 1987 Among the issues addressed the relatively slow rate of technical progress in the pre divestiture telecommunications industry and its apparent recent acceleration the future role of the divested regional Bell operating companies changes in international trade in telecommunications equipment and services Paper edition unseen 12 95 Annotation copyrighted by Book News Inc Portland OR Global Competitiveness of U.S. Advanced-technology Manufacturing Industries ,1991 Forum for Applied Research and Public Policy ,1990 Telecommunications Update ,1989 Building Information Infrastructure Brian Kahin,1992 Originally presented at a symposium at Harvard s John F Kennedy School of Government in Dec 1990 P 2

Telecommunications Strategy for Economic Development William H. Read, Jan L. Youtie, 1996-05-23 Strategies linking the dynamic and changing world of telecommunication to local desires for economic growth are at the heart of this important book In the age of information grass roots political leaders have discovered telecommunications as they seek to boost local employment and community well being Taking the cases of Richardson Texas a Dallas suburb that has attracted over 50 000 high tech jobs city state Singapore which has successfully upgraded its telecommunications infrastructure to lure information intensive companies Atlanta using the 1996 Olympics to advance its information technology base and others the authors critically examine the successes and failures of each Their conclusions will be invaluable to planners politicians and scholars who want to know whether and how advanced telecommunications infrastructure leads to accelerated economic development

Performance and Welfare Effects of Work Restructuring Rosemary L. Batt, 1995

The Democracy Gap Jill Hills, S. Papathanassopoulos, 1991-07-30 This work examines the political choices that surround the new technologies of telecommunications and broadcasting and focuses on the essential issues of who determines how they are implemented and why as well as who benefits from them In its study of the distributional potential of these technologies the book concentrates on the political and economic interests that are in conflict over the possibilities and in particular on the ways in which the American and European governments have attempted to innovate organize and control information technology telecommunications and broadcasting The technological innovation backed by industrialized governments the authors contend has largely served political and military interests rather than those of the general population Written from the perspective of the individual citizen the book argues that the emphasis by governments on industrial leadership has preempted concern for access information and accountability Among the issues discussed are the impact that the globalization of industry is having on national sovereignty the evolution of three international trading blocs through the standardization of high definition television and digital networks the politics of cable and satellite transmission and the convergence of broadcasting and telecommunications This work offers a unique linkage between telecommunications broadcasting and information technology and it argues that governments have lost sight of the informational underpinnings of the democratic process Students of politics international relations political economy and media studies will find this book to be an invaluable resource Journal of Regulatory Economics ,1995 New Books in the Communications Library University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. Communications Library,1989-07 Malaysia's Public Sector in the Twenty-first Century Sulaiman Mahbob, Malaysian Institute of Economic Research, John Deutsch Institute for the Study of Economic Policy,1997 Bridging the Digital Divide California Council on Science and Technology,2001 The Political Economy of Telecommunications Reform in Developing Countries Ben Petrazzini,1995-10-18 Based on a policy making theoretical framework and on the recent experiences of 10 developing countries this study explores the factors that lead to the success or failure of telecommunications reform It provides universal conclusions that might help predict the success or failure of telecommunications policies such as privatization and liberalization in other nations that are moving towards reform This book is an original contribution to our understanding of the rapid and often complex transformations in telecommunications policies It defies previous assumptions about conditions for success and failure of policy implementation Although numerous publications deal with telecommunications policy reform in Europe or the United States little has been written about it in the developing world This book fills the gap and will be invaluable for academics policy makers and others concerned with communications economic development and international business Accessions, Books, Selected Articles, Periodicals Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development. Library,1989 Communication and Trade Donald McLean Lamberton,1998 These essays focus on the field of economic and communications development They celebrate the writing and research of Meheroo Jussawalla who has recognized the importance of global patterns of technological cultural sociological and economic change The Political Economy of Telecommunication Reform in Developing Countries Ben A. Petrazzini,1993 Review of Industrial Organization ,2000
