This surface can change slowly over millions of years, or very quickly. In this lesson, you will learn about fast changes to the Earth's surface.

Geologists have found three big natural events that change the Earth's surface. They are volcanoes, earthquakes, and landslides.

Under the crust is molten rock. Heat and pressure make cracks in the crust. When this happens, a volcano is called a vent.

When you think of a volcano, you think of lava. Lava flows out of a volcano. When lava touches the ground, it turns into rock again. About halfway down the mountain, it turns into a gas and goes up.
