

Discourse Performance in L2 Task Repetition

Abstract

Language practice in the format of 'repetition' has often been associated with behavioristic drills that was regarded as giving rise to habit formation, and was often excluded from the mainstream language teaching approaches. However, this study, drawing upon Bygate's (1999) argument on task being a context for the framing and reframing of language, shows that repetition in meaningful tasks does not necessarily involve passive performance repetition, instead, L2 learners are actively re-constructing the narrative discourse under the task repetition condition. This study provides support to this argument through the analysis of the speech samples from thirteen learners performing an immediate L2 task repetition. The participants were asked to perform a video-based monologue story narration twice to an imagined listener, and the comparison of the learners' first and second speech performance shows that the learners enhanced their discourse performance with: (1) larger discourse quantity (evidenced by more Total Words, Total Propositions, and higher P-density); (2) higher cohesion (evidenced by higher LSA Given/New value); and (3) higher lexical quality (evidenced by higher Noun Hyperonymy value, indicating more specific nouns used). The results suggest that task repetition in addition to its effects on language complexity, accuracy, and fluency has an impact on learners' speech performance at the discourse level.

Introduction

Research on task-based language teaching and learning has undergone remarkable development in recent years (Ellis, 2003, 2005; Long 2014; Robinson, 2011; Skehan, 2009; Van den Branden, Bygate, & Norris, 2009). Research findings in general lend support to the effectiveness of using 'tasks', in which meaning is primary, with variations of conditions and characteristics for the improvement of second language performance and proficiency (Samuda & Bygate, 2008; Skehan, Bui, Li, & Wang, 2012). However, among the task conditions, task repetition perhaps is the least studied (though notable studies include Ahmadian & Tavakoli, 2011; Bui, 2015; Bygate, 1996, 1999, 2001; De Jong & Perfetti, 2012; Fukuta, 2016; Lynch & McLean, 2000; Gass, Mackey, Alvarez-Torres, & Fernandez-

The Power of Discourse in Ritual Performance Ulrich Demmer, 2007 This volume focuses on the ways discourse is used in ritual performances as an important medium of power enabling speakers actors to construct redefine and transform interpersonal relationships cultural concepts and worldviews The various case studies gathered here from South Asia South East Asia Africa and South America show that recent developments in linguistic anthropology ritual theory and performance studies provide new conceptual tools to take a fresh look at these issues Foregrounding pragmatic approaches to language and discourse they explore the social dynamics of rhetorical discourse text and context normativity and creativity the poetics of dialogue and speech as well as the manifold interactions of speakers addressees and audience The volume thus embraces both the micro level of speech activities as well as the macro level of social and political relationships and brings out the subtle workings of control authority and power in situations marked as ritual The contributions all based on extensive fieldwork include many concrete samples of speech and discourse which give an authentic impression of the different voices and make for vivid reading

Courtroom Discourse as Verbal Performance Seth William Wood, 2012 Individual events within courtroom discourse such as lawyer witness interactions have been studied extensively particularly within a framework of powerful vs powerless language Adelsward 1987 Archer 2006 Bogoch 2000 Eades 2010 Fuller 1993 Gnisci Hobbs 2007 Keating 2009 Penman 1990 Philips 1984 Roberts 1990 However this thesis will show that courtroom discourse is sufficiently unique to warrant a distinct framework It will also explore the explanatory power of a Courtroom Discourse Verbal Performance framework influenced by Verbal Art as Performance Bauman 1977 In particular this work will create a framework Courtroom Discourse Verbal Performance that explains the sociolinguistic situation of the entire courtroom trial instead of simply one small part i e questioning a witness entering a plea etc This framework allows for the inclusion of the whole courtroom discourse event into a single unifying idea of courtroom discourse as performance The peculiar sociolinguistic interactions of various people within courtroom discourse are explained as restrictions on the interactions of roles within the performance Courtroom discourse data gathered from the Provo Fourth District Court is presented and analyzed as supporting evidence

Learning Language through Task Repetition Martin Bygate, 2018-09-15 After more than 20 years of research this is the first book length treatment of second language task repetition the repetition of encounters with a task that involve re using the same content with the same overall purpose The topic links task performance with the growing mastery of both the task and of relevant language and constitutes a site with special potential to promote learning within and across language lessons and for preparing students for assessment and of course real world language performance The volume assembles chapters that complement each other in interesting ways significant background reviews studies of patterns of change across task repetition iterations and reports on the use and nature of task repetition in language classes in on going programmes Contributors draw on a variety of interpretive frameworks and report from a range of language educational contexts The volume will be of interest to language researchers teacher educators teachers and students as well as others interested in the contribution of task repetition to learning

A Pragmatic Theory of Rhetoric Walter H. Beale,1987 Walter H Beale offers the most coherent treatment of the aims and modes of discourse to be presented in more than a decade His development of a semiotic grammar of motives that relates the problems of meaning in discourse both to linguistic structure and ways of constructing reality stands as a provocative new theory of rhetoric sharply focused on writing He includes a comprehensive treatment of rhetoric its classes and varieties modes and strategies In addition he demonstrates the importance of the purpose substance and social context of discourse at a time when scholarly attention has become preoccupied with process He fortifies and extends the Aristotelian approach to rhetoric and discourse at a time when much theory and pedagogy have yielded to modernist assumptions and methods And finally he develops a theoretical framework that illuminates the relationship between rhetoric the language arts and the human sciences in general

The Performance of Power Sue-Ellen Case, Janelle G. Reinelt, 1991-05-01 Recently in the field of theatre studies there has been an increasing amount of debate and dissonance regarding the borders of its territory its methodologies subject matter and scholarly perspectives The nature of this debate could be termed political and in fact concerns the performance of power the struggle over power relations embedded in texts methodologies and the academy itself This striking new collection of nineteen divergent essays represents this performance of power and the way in which the recent convergence of new critical theories with historical studies has politicized the study of the theatre Neither play text performance nor scholarship and teaching can safely reside any longer in the free politically neutral self signifying realm of the aesthetic Politicizing theatrical discourse means that both the hermeneutics and the histories of theatre reveal the role of ideology and power dynamics New strategies and concepts and a vital new phase of awareness appear in these illuminating essays A variety of historical periods from the Renaissance through the Victorian and up to the most contemporary work of the Wooster group illustrate the ways in which contemporary strategies do not require contemporary texts and performances but can combine with historical methods and subjects to produce new theatrical discourse different ways a text could be drummed and still be understood and how exact was the correlation between speech sounds and drum strokes By examining in detail the performance paradigm of Antoine Owono a church leader who has been drumming for more than forty years Paul Neeley presents a thorough analysis of this communication event The analysis ranges from phonology of drumstrokes to the discourse level to the level of community comprehension This study draws from such diverse disciplines as sociolinguistics anthropology semiotics cognition aesthetics and ethnomusicology to make an invaluable contribution to our understanding of African culture and communication Comparing Discourse Performance According to Elicitation Procedure Aimee Wheat,2006 Selected Papers of the International Pragmatics Conference, Antwerp, August 17-22, 1987: The pragmatics of intercultural and international communication Jef Verschueren,1991
