Verkuyl, H. J. Verkuyl, 1996-05-30 Sentences may pertain to states or processes or events They may express duration frequency habituality and many other forms of temporality How do they do this It is the aspectual properties of sentences in natural languages which allow the user to express a temporal structure and Henk Verkuyl presents a unified formal system to account for them He explains aspectuality in terms of the opposition between terminative aspect and durative aspect and describes the way in which terminative aspect is compositionally formed on the basis of semantic information expressed by different syntactic elements in particular the verb and its arguments The aim is to determine which semantic conditions make a sentence terminative but at least ten different forms of durative aspectuality are also treated All are drawn into a theory which can account for both terminative and durative aspectuality together A Theory of Aspectuality draws together into a coherent whole the author's thinking on the subject over the last twenty years and will interest all those working on aspect and the semantics of noun phrases It promises to be a major new contribution to our understanding of the subject Michigan Dairy Farmer, 1914 The Complete Dramatic and Poetical Works of William Shakespeare William Shakespeare, 1881 Fur-fish-game, 1929 Manet, 1832-1883 Édouard Manet, Françoise Cachin, Charles S.
