Automated Information Retrieval In Libraries A Management Handbook:

Automated Information Retrieval in Libraries Vicki Anders, 1992-06-23 Computerized database searching is a common phenomenon in libraries today Everyone does it but not everyone does it well especially when so many options for computerized searching are available This is not a book about how to search rather it is a book about how to integrate computerized database searching into the fabric of library operations Managers of automated information retrieval services will find practical advice and suggestions for managing an integrated service Library management will find this book useful for understanding how the various components of automated information retrieval can work together and will find useful suggestions for planning for the future The first chapter details how to make the options work together how locally loaded databases and CD ROM databases impact on traditional mediated searches and how end users affect the librarian as search analyst role Managing and budgeting for an integrated service are covered in detail in chapters of interest to library managers planning to institute or expand a search service or to managers of existing search services The special problems of library staff who serve as search analysts and the special problems of end users and how they interact with and how they understand the concept of database searching are discussed in sections dealing with the human side of working with automated information retrieval The author discusses the hardware and software of searching and the effect of the continuing rapid development of technology on the budget and the future role of libraries Selected bibliographies direct readers to case studies and articles examining practical experiences of various libraries

Managing Performing Arts Collections in Academic and Public Libraries Carolyn A. Sheehy, 1994-07-21 This professional reference provides solid advice to academic and public librarians for managing performing arts collections The volume is divided into sections on the history of performing arts librarianship dance collections film studies collections music collections and theater collections Each chapter is written by one or more expert contributors and presents current and reliable information on collection management They discuss personnel management collection development technical services public services the impact of new technologies facilities management financial planning and political considerations Each chapter closes with references cited in the chapter and the volume concludes with a valuable selected annotated bibliography of important background sources and management tools

Information Retrieval & Library Automation, 1988 Circulation Services in a Small Academic Library Constance Battaile, 1992-07-27 In a library circulation is the process of lending books to borrowers and accurately reshelving them after they have been returned so that they will be retrievable by the next user This basic cycle has many elaborations and sub cycles attached to it such as those for overdues and holds the record keeping process and the reserve book operation These sub cycles vary from library to library but the basic cycle remains the same in every library that allows patrons to remove books Connie Battaile provides a detailed volume written for those new to the circulation department of small academic libraries The author presents not the definitive way to run a circulation department but rather she provides a variety of possible methods Because the circulation department is the main public contact point many library housekeeping chores are assigned to it Again these additional responsibilities vary from library to library but the author provides various procedures The physical environment of the department and the stacks the staff effective communications and scheduling are covered in full detail Directory of Library Automation Software, Systems, and Services, 1993

A Library Manager's Guide to the Physical Processing of Nonprint Materials Karen C. Driessen, Sheila A.

Smyth, 1995-01-24 Provides analytical and practical solutions to the integration and processing of nonprint materials in the library Automation in Library Reference Services Robert Carande, 1992-11-24 The future of reference librarianship as a viable and essential part of the library depends on developing a proactive participatory and hands on approach to automation This book pulls together the most important elements of change likely to influence library information services and explains them clearly It covers both the conceptual context and practical real life implementations of current automation in reference services The automation technologies include OPACs CD ROM international networks expert systems natural language processing and virtual reality In addition to helping people find information reference librarians also perform another service the comprehension and understanding of the operative connections between and route to information It necessitates an unrelenting exploration and immersion within the world information matrix to maintain currency and knowledge The author shows how reference librarians have in the past and will in the future take a leading role in adapting automation to reference services Communication Informatics and Librarianship in India S. P. Agrawal, Pushpa Rani Sharma, 1992 Planning Second Generation Automated Library Systems Edwin Cortez, Tom Smorch, 1993-05-30 This guide focuses on the implementation and management of second generation automated library systems It advances knowledge of the field by describing the migration path of library automated systems Specifically the book is intended to give practical directions in procuring a replacement library automated system As such the text reviews new approaches to library automation which rely on knowledge gained over the past two decades In charting the procurement process the book indicates how to migrate the library's database It discusses state of the art technology such as scanning and imaging devices and provides descriptions and analyses of telecommunications and networking technology and issues This book is intended as an automation planning guide for librarians and library administrators The book expands the subject to include special public and academic libraries and takes into account the experience of those libraries which have already automated and are now considering migration to more powerful automated library systems Special attention is given to integrated library systems and to innovative and still emerging technologies which complement these systems No other text exists that is written at a level that acknowledges the increased sophistication of librarians with automation Strategic Management for Academic Libraries Robert M. Hayes, 1993-08-18 This professional reference for academic librarians provides detailed guidance for the strategic management of academic libraries While strategic planning is important this volume recognizes that even the best plans must confront the reality of implementation of services and facilities within the library on a daily basis This book offers solutions to immediate operational problems within the academic library and treats strategic planning as but one component of overall strategic management The first part of the work overviews definitions and discusses the issues and objectives central to strategic library management The second part contains chapters on the academic and external contexts within which the library functions and looks at the impact of those contexts on the strategic management plan The third part provides detailed information on technical tools and procedures by which strategic management can be accomplished
