Banana Breeding Michael Pillay, Abdou Tenkouano, 2011-01-21 With the current world population growth of 1.2% the earth can expect to house 9.1 billion people by 2050. Food production too must increase to accommodate these numbers. Easy growing high calorie nutritious foods such as bananas are the top priority as a solution to this imminent problem. The first comprehensive compendium on bananas in rec GeneFlow '04 Ruth D. Raymond, 2004 Lessons from Mount Kilimanjaro Amy Stambach, 2013-08-21 Stambach brings together an ethnographic study of a school and community in East Africa. Stambach focuses on the role school plays in the development of the children's identity and relationships to their parents and community as well as in the development of the region. At issue here are the competing influences of Western modernity and the cultural traditions of East Africa. Ideas about gender roles, sexuality, identity, and family and communal obligations are all at stake. Stambach looks at the controversial practice of female circumcision in the context of school and community teachings about girls' bodies and examines cultural signifiers like music, clothing, and food to discuss the tensions in the region. Alcohol and its Role in the Evolution of Human Society Ian S. Hornsey, 2016-01-13 Archaeologists and anthropologists, especially ethnologists, have for many years realized that man's ingestion of alcoholic beverages may well have played a significant part in his transition from hunter-gatherer to agriculturalist. This unique book provides a scientific text on the subject of ethanol that also aims to include material designed to show non-scientists what fermentation is all about. Conversely, scientists may well be surprised to find the extent to which ethanol has played a part in evolution and civilisation of our species. GeneFlow, 2003 Current Literature, 1893 Current Opinion, 1893 The Making and Unmaking of the Haya Lived World Brad Weiss, 1996 At the center of this subtle ethnographic account of the Haya communities of Northwest Tanzania is the idea of a lived world as both the product and the producer of everyday practices. Drawing on his experience living with the Haya, Brad Weiss explores Haya ways of constructing and inhabiting their community and examines the forces that shape and transform these practices over time. In particular, he shows how the Haya, a group at the fringe of the global economy, have responded to the processes and material aspects of money, markets, and commodities as they make and remake their place in a changing world. Grounded in a richly detailed ethnography of Haya practice, Weiss's analysis considers the symbolic qualities and values embedded in goods and transactions across a wide range of cultural activity: agricultural practice and food preparation, the body's experience of epidemic disease from AIDS to the infant affliction of plastic teeth, and long-standing forms of social movement and migration. Weiss emphasizes how Haya images of consumption describe the relationship between their local community and the global economy. Throughout, he demonstrates that particular commodities and more general market processes are always material and meaningful forces with the potential for creativity as well as disruption in Haya social life. By calling attention to the productive dimensions of this spatial and temporal world, his work highlights the importance of human agency in not only the Haya but any
