Media Technologies Tarleton Gillespie, Pablo J. Boczkowski, Kirsten A. Foot, 2014-01-24 Scholars from communication and media studies join those from science and technology studies to examine media technologies as complex sociomaterial phenomena In recent years scholarship around media technologies has finally shed the assumption that these technologies are separate from and powerfully determining of social life looking at them instead as produced by and embedded in distinct social cultural and political practices Communication and media scholars have increasingly taken theoretical perspectives originating in science and technology studies STS while some STS scholars interested in information technologies have linked their research to media studies inquiries into the symbolic dimensions of these tools In this volume scholars from both fields come together to advance this view of media technologies as complex sociomaterial phenomena The contributors first address the relationship between materiality and mediation considering such topics as the lived realities of network infrastructure The contributors then highlight media technologies as always in motion held together through the minute unobserved work of many including efforts to keep these technologies alive Contributors Pablo J Boczkowski Geoffrey C Bowker Finn Brunton Gabriella Coleman Gregory J Downey Kirsten A Foot Tarleton Gillespie Steven J Jackson Christopher M Kelty Leah A Lievrouw Sonia Livingstone Ignacio Siles Jonathan Sterne Lucy Suchman Fred Turner

Social Theory and Communication Technology Terje Rasmussen, 2019-06-11 This title was first published in 2001 An investigation of new forms of interaction and communication The essays address theoretical contributions and insights which may assist us in the understanding of modern society inhabited by a wide range of new media In order to answer questions on this subject the text suggests a structural hermeneutic a view on the public as agents embedded in their lifeworlds rather than as consumers and receivers who play a large part in reproducing structural and distanced processes of meaning The essays explore the implications of such daily practices as making a telephone call or sending an email receiving money from a bank machine using a credit card or retrieving information from a Web site Each of these practices reproduce patterns of information and communication practices which reshape communication processes in society The essays examine the relationship between media change and social change with particular emphasis on their contribution to social interaction in everyday life and in the reproduction of social systems

Communication Theory David Holmes,2005-03-15 This is a very clear and concise summary of media studies present and future There is no other book that can both be used as a teaching tool and can help scholars organize their thinking about new media as this book can Steve Jones University of Chicago This book offers an introduction to communication theory that is appropriate to our post broadcast interactive media environment The author contrasts the first media age of broadcast with the second media age of interactivity Communication Theory argues that the different kinds of communication dynamics found in cyberspace demand a reassessment of the methodologies used to explore media as well as new understandings of the concepts of interaction and community virtual communities and broadcast communities The media are examined not simply in terms of content but also in terms of medium and network forms Holmes also explores the differences between analogue and digital cultures and between cyberspace and virtual reality The book serves both as an upper level textbook for New Media courses and a good general guide to understanding the sociological complexities of the modern communications environment
