Community Control And The Urban School:

Community Control and the Urban School Mario D. Fantini, Marilyn Gittell, Richard Magat, 1970      Community Control of the Urban School Yvonne Marie Smith, 1973      The City Alan S. Berger, 1978      Equal Educational Opportunity 1971: Compensatory education and other alternatives in urban schools United States. Congress. Senate. Select Committee on Equal Educational Opportunity, 1970      Community Control and the Philadelphia Public Schools Fred J. Foley, 1979      The Containment Michelle Adams, 2025-01-14 Winner of the MAAH Stone Book Award Winner of the 2025 Avern Cohn Award A New York Times Notable Book of 2025 A New Yorker Best Book of 2025 selection A Christian Science Monitor 25 Best Books of 2025 The epic story of Detroit's struggle to integrate schools in its suburbs and the defeat of desegregation in the North In 1974 the Supreme Court issued a momentous decision In the case of Milliken v Bradley the justices brought a halt to school desegregation across the North and to the civil rights movement's struggle for a truly equal education for all How did this come about and why In The Containment the esteemed legal scholar Michelle Adams tells the epic story of the struggle to integrate Detroit schools and what happened when it collided with Nixon appointed justices committed to a judicial counterrevolution Adams chronicles the devoted activists who tried to uplift Detroit's students amid the upheavals of riots Black power and white flight and how their efforts led to federal judge Stephen Roth's landmark order to achieve racial balance by tearing down the walls separating the city and its suburbs The metropolitan remedy could have remade the landscape of racial justice Instead the Supreme Court ruled that the suburbs could not be a part of the effort to integrate and thus upheld the inequalities that remain in place today Adams tells this story via compelling portraits of a city under stress and of key figures including Detroit's first Black mayor Coleman Young and Justices Marshall Rehnquist and Powell The result is a legal and historical drama that exposes the roots of today's backlash against affirmative action and other efforts to fulfill the country's promise      California. Court of Appeal (1st Appellate District). Records and Briefs California (State).,      Community Control and Quality Education in Urban School Systems Mario D. Fantini, Brookings Institution. Economic Studies Program. Conference on the Community School, 1968      Controlling Public Education Kathryn A. McDermott, 1999 Most Americans believe that local school districts are the only means by which citizens may exercise control over public education Kathryn McDermott argues to the contrary that existing local institutions are no longer sufficient for achieving either equity or democratic governance Not only is local control inequitable it also fails to live up to its reputation for guaranteeing public participation and citizen influence Drawing upon democratic theory and the results of field research in New Haven Connecticut and three suburbs McDermott contends that our educational system can be made more democratic by centralizing control over funding while decentralizing most authority over schools to the level of schools themselves while enacting public school choice controlled for racial balance To many people in Connecticut and elsewhere the tension between equal opportunity for all students and local control of public education seems impossible to resolve In 1996 the Connecticut Supreme Court ruled in Sheff v O Neill that local control produces unconstitutional segregation of public schools. Nearly all of the state's 169 towns operate their own public schools and like the towns they serve the schools are generally homogeneous with respect to race and socioeconomic class. In the Sheff ruling the court declared that making school districts coterminous with town lines is the single most important factor contributing to the present concentration of racial and ethnic minorities in the Hartford public school system. At the same time the court also acknowledged that the town based school system presently furthers the legitimate nonracial interests of permitting considerable local control and accountability in educational matters. In Connecticut and elsewhere it has often seemed necessary to choose between local control and equity in public education and local control has almost always won. McDermott argues that rather than seeing local control and equity as conflicting goals policymakers should regard them as equally important components of democracy in public education. In her view a truly democratic system of education should both encourage citizen participation in school governance and contribute to the formation and maintenance of a social order in which equality of opportunity prevails over hierarchies of privilege. Centralizing distribution of resources and using controlled choice to end racial isolation would provide greater equality of opportunity while decentralizing management of schools would expand citizen participation. McDermott's conclusions break new ground in our understanding of local school governance itself and call into question the conventional wisdom about local participation. These findings should interest those who study school governance and reform especially in an urban setting as well as policy makers administrators teachers students and citizens eager to improve their schools.

Community Control Alan A. Altshuler, 1970 Congressional Record United States. Congress, 1968 The Congressional Record is the official record of the proceedings and debates of the United States Congress. It is published daily when Congress is in session. The Congressional Record began publication in 1873. Debates for sessions prior to 1873 are recorded in The Debates and Proceedings in the Congress of the United States 1789-1824, the Register of Debates in Congress 1824-1837 and the Congressional Globe 1833-1873. Sextus Julius Africanus und die byzantinische Chronographie Gelzer, 1880 Community Control of Schools Brookings Institution, 1970 Conference report on a meeting to discuss educational and social implications of decentralization in urban area school control to meet the leadership demands of the Black minority group in the USA includes papers and records of discussions on administrative aspects of decision making cultural factors of social integration social participation in political leadership teacher behaviour etc. Statistical tables. Conference held in Washington 1968 December Urban Schools and the Issue of Neighborhood Control Henry M. Levin, 1970 New York City Public Schools from Brownsville to Bloomberg Heather Lewis, 2013 EDUCATION History Library Catalog of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York Metropolitan Museum of Art (New York, N.Y.). Library, 1980 Life at Four Corners Carol Coburn, 1992 Defined less by geography than by demographic character. Block Kansas in many ways exemplifies the prevalent yet seldom scrutinized ethnic religion based community of the rural Midwest.

Physically small the town sprang up around four corners formed by crossroads Spiritually strong and cohesive it became the educational and cultural center for generations of German Lutheran families In this book Carol Coburn analyzes the powerful combination of those ethnic and religious institutions that effectively resisted assimilation for nearly 80 years only to succumb to the influences of the outside world during the 1930s and 1940s Emphasizing the formal and informal education provided by the church school and family she examines the total process of how values identities and all aspects of culture were transmitted from generation to generation American Education Richard Wynn, Joanne Lindsay Wynn, 1977

School Reform, Corporate Style Dorothy Shipp, 2006 Like other big city school systems Chicago's has been repeatedly reformed over the last century Yet its schools have fallen far short of citizens expectations and left a gap between the performances of white and minority students Many blame the educational establishment for resisting change Other critics argue that reform occurs too often still others claim it comes not often enough Dorothy Shipp reappraises the tumultuous history of educational progress in Chicago revealing that the persistent lack of improvement is due not to the extent but rather the type of reform Throughout the twentieth century managerial reorganizations initiated by the business community repeatedly altered the governance structure of schools as well as the relationships of teachers to children and parents but brought little improvement while other more promising reform models were either resisted or crowded out Shipp chronicles how Chicago's corporate actors led abetted or restrained nearly every attempt to transform the city's school system then asks whether schools might be better reformed by others To show why city schools have failed urban children so badly she traces Chicago's reform history over four political eras revealing how corporate power was instrumental in designing and revamping the system Her narrative encompasses the formative era of 1880-1930 when teachers unions moderated business plans previously unexplored business activism from 1930 to 1980 when civil rights dominated school reform and the decentralization of the 1980s She also covers the uneasy cooperation among business associations in the 1990s to install the mayor as head of the school system a governing regime now challenged by privatization advocates Business people may be too wedded to a stunted view of educators to forge a productive partnership for change Unionized teachers bridle at the second class status accorded them by managers If reform is to reach deeply into classrooms Shipp concludes it might well require a new coalition of teachers unions and parents to create a fresh agenda that supersedes corporate interests This study clearly shows that in Chicago as elsewhere urban schooling is intertwined with politics and power By reviewing more than a century of corporate efforts to make education work Shipp makes a strong case that it's high time to look elsewhere perhaps to educators themselves for new leadership The Encyclopedia Americana, 1927
