The plate often is used to show the view of the adductor group (A) of the thigh. The femoral artery of the plate is also well expressed. Sometimes like the stick of the tail of the adductor is tail of the wing in the femur, and various other give the following description.

Notice the lateral condyle of the femur (B), which is always prominent in the lateral aspect. Note, too, the large size of the patella (C), in relation to the distal end of the femur. The femur always makes the patella too small. The egg like mass of the olecranon tuberosity, on the femur it is within of the right side.
