

Notes on Annotated Bibliography

- Annotated bibliography and a Works Cited page are not the same thing.
- A Works Cited page appears as the last page of your final draft of an essay and lists in
- alphabetical order all sources (citation) that appear within the essay.
- Annotated bibliography only contains the secondary sources and has the following
- components:
  - Citation (the components of the citation vary based on the source). When it comes to an article in a journal, the following is needed:
    - Author (Last, First)
    - "Title of Article in Quotation Marks"
    - Name of the Journal
    - Vol.
    - No.
    - Year
    - pp
    - Database
  - A three to four sentence summary of the article as a whole.
  - How or where will this fit into your essay

The secondary help support the primary source. The word annotation simply means providing a note of sorts. For our purposes, one needs to do the following for each source:

- Citation (Author (Last, First, "Title of the Article Where All of the Important Words Are Capitalized in Quotation Marks," The Name of the Journal Italicized, Vol. , No. , pp. , Database.
- A two to four sentence summary of what the article is about
- A sentence or two of how this source fits into your essay.

- Two to four sentence summary of the article.
- It looks like this could fit into any of my body paragraph.
