Catching Light Kathryn Stripling Byer, 2002-02-01 In Catching Light Kathryn Stripling Byer searches for the language of aging for a way of confronting every woman's fear of looking in the mirror and seeing an old woman staring back Inspired by a series of photographs entitled Evelyn which depicts a former artist's model in her declining years still full of life and facing death with flair and wit Byer finds a voice to contemplate the enigmatic but inevitable process of growing old Byer opens her book with a ten poem sequence In the Photograph Gallery Who is she a child hanging on to her mother's skirt asks as if she is frightened by what she sees Just a little old lady her mother soothes That's all she is By placing Evelyn herself in the gallery to respond to the photos and hear that exchange Byer opens the door into the inner life of this little old lady Part Two moves into more personal mythological territory as the images of Evelyn and the poet's own recollections coalesce The final section draws closer to Evelyn's dark hour her humor in the face of death her memories her acknowledgment of her sexuality her letting go Catching Light is a profound inquiry into aging and how one remarkable woman faces it sings to it mocks it rebels against it and ultimately embraces it

Six Poets from the Mountain South John Lang,2010-04-20 In the most extensive work to date on major poets from the mountain South John Lang takes as his point of departure an oft quoted remark by Jim Wayne Miller Appalachian literature is and has always been as decidedly worldly secular and profane in its outlook as the region s traditional religion appears to be spiritual and otherworldly Although this statement may be accurate for Miller s own poetry and fiction Lang maintains that it does not do justice to the pervasive religious and spiritual concerns of many of the mountain South s finest writers including the five other leading poets whose work he analyzes along with Miller s Fred Chappell Robert Morgan Jeff Daniel Marion Kathryn Stripling Byer and Charles Wright Lang demonstrates all write poetry that explores sometimes with widely varying results what they see as the undeniable presence of the divine within the temporal world Like Blake and Emerson before them these poets find the supernatural within nature rather than beyond it They all exhibit a love of place in their poems a strong sense of connection to nature and the land especially the mountains Yet while their affirmation of the world before them suggests a resistance to the otherworldliness that Miller points to their poetry is nonetheless permeated with spiritual questing Dante strongly influences both Chappell and Wright though the latter eventually resigns himself to being simply a God fearing agnostic whereas Chappell follows Dante in celebrating the love that moves the sun and other stars Byer probably the least orthodox of these poets chooses to lay up treasures on earth rejecting the transcendent in favor of a Native American spirituality of immanence while Morgan and Marion find in nature what Marion calls a vocabulary of wonders akin to Emerson's conviction that nature is the language of the spiritual. Employing close readings of the poets' work and relating it to British and American Romanticism as well as contemporary eco theology and eco criticism Lang's book is the most ambitious and searching foray yet into the worlds of these renowned post World War II Appalachian poets. Southern Writers Joseph M. Flora, Amber Vogel, 2006-06-21 This new edition of Southern Writers assumes its distinguished predecessor's place as the essential reference on literary artists of the American South. Broadly expanded and thoroughly revised it boasts 604 entries nearly double the earlier edition's written by 264 scholars. For every figure major and minor from the venerable and canonical to the fresh and innovative a biographical sketch and chronological list of published works provide comprehensive concise up to date information. Here in one convenient source are the South's novelists and short story writers poets and dramatists memoirists and essayists journalists scholars and biographers from the colonial period to the twenty first century. What constitutes a southern writer is always a matter for debate. Editors Joseph M. Flora and Amber Vogel have used a generous definition that turns on having a significant connection to the region in either a personal or literary sense. New to this volume are younger writers who have emerged in the quarter century since the dictionary's original publication as well as older talents previously unknown or unacknowledged. For almost every writer found in the previous edition a new biography has been commissioned. Drawn from the very best minds on southern literature and covering the full spectrum of its practitioners Southern Writers is an indispensable reference book for anyone intrigued by the subject. This Visible Speaking Kathryn Winograd, 2024-03-15 Author of eight books and a Colorado Book Award Winner in Poetry Kathryn Winograd is an award winning Colorado poet essayist and photographer. A Treasury of Irish Poetry in the English Tongue Stopford Augustus Brooke, Thomas William Rolleston, 1910 Encyclopedia of North Carolina William S.
