Computer Primer Resource Guide For Nurses:

Computer Primer & Resource Guide for Nurses Susan J. Grobe, 1984      Nursing and Computers Virginia K. Saba, Karen A. Rieder, Dorothy B. Pocklington, 2012-12-06 Intended for nurses who would like to know more about the development of the computerized information systems on which they have become so dependent Nursing and Computers An Anthology is a wide range introduction to the literature of this field The editors have selected historical and contemporary papers to show both the systems at their inception and examples of how they have evolved Of interest to both the generalist and the specialist these articles examine the partnership between nurses and computers in the areas of administration practice research and education      Essentials of Computers for Nurses Virginia K. Saba, Kathleen Ann McCormick, 1986      Nursing Informatics Marion J. Ball, Kathryn J. Hannah, Ulla Gerdin Jelger, Hans Peterson, 2013-11-11 Nursing like other health related professions is information intensive The quality of care a patient receives is based on the soundness of judgment exercised by the health care team Underlying sound judgment is up to date information Unless nurses have access to accurate and pertinent information the care being rendered will not be of the highest standard What is required is not necessarily more rapid and efficient information services Modern technology can process immense amounts of data in the blink of an eye What we in the health professions need are information systems that are more intelligent systems that can integrate information from many sources systems that analyze and synthesize information and display it so that it may be applied directly in patient care in other words information that answers a question or even gives practical advice In order to accomplish such objectives work is needed to establish the scientific and theoretical basis for the use of computing and information systems by health professionals This is the research component In addition there is the need for continued development and evaluation of practical information systems      Global Health Informatics Education Evelyn J.S. Hovenga, John Mantas, 2004-08-30 Throughout the world healthcare professionals often lack knowledge of the possibilities and limitations of systematically processing data information and knowledge and of the resulting impact on quality decision making They are often asked to use information technologies of which they have limited appreciation in order to enhance their practices through better use of information resources However for systematically processing data information and knowledge in medicine and in healthcare healthcare professionals who are well trained in medical informatics or health informatics are needed It will only be through improved education of healthcare professionals and through an increase in the number of well trained workers in health and medical informatics that this lack of knowledge and associated skills can begin to be reversed Although we can recognize further progress in educating health and a considerable number of educational programs for health informatics medical informatics specialists have been set up there is still a need to enhance these educational activities world wide considering global developments as well as new curricular concepts and technological opportunities IMIA and in particular its working group on health and medical informatics education is the leading international society stimulating such educational activities in various ways This book is especially helpful for educators in the field of health medical informatics
