The Foundations of Statistics: A Simulation-based Approach Shравan Vasisht, Michael Broe, 2010-11-11 Statistics and hypothesis testing are routinely used in areas such as linguistics that are traditionally not mathematically intensive In such fields when faced with experimental data many students and researchers tend to rely on commercial packages to carry out statistical data analysis often without understanding the logic of the statistical tests they rely on As a consequence results are often misinterpreted and users have difficulty in flexibly applying techniques relevant to their own research they use whatever they happen to have learned A simple solution is to teach the fundamental ideas of statistical hypothesis testing without using too much mathematics This book provides a non mathematical simulation based introduction to basic statistical concepts and encourages readers to try out the simulations themselves using the source code and data provided the freely available programming language R is used throughout Since the code presented in the text almost always requires the use of previously introduced programming constructs diligent students also acquire basic programming abilities in R The book is intended for advanced undergraduate and graduate students in any discipline although the focus is on linguistics psychology and cognitive science It is designed for self instruction but it can also be used as a textbook for a first course on statistics Earlier versions of the book have been used in undergraduate and graduate courses in Europe and the US Vasisht and Broe have written an attractive introduction to the foundations of statistics It is concise surprisingly comprehensive self contained and yet quite accessible Highly recommended Harald Baayen Professor of Linguistics University of Alberta Canada By using the text students not only learn to do the specific things outlined in the book they also gain a skill set that empowers them to explore new areas that lie beyond the book s coverage Colin Phillips Professor of Linguistics University of Maryland USA
