Patrology Johannes Quasten, 2000 Newsletter, 2002 Journal of the Society for Armenian Studies, 2004 The Armenian Adaptation of the Ecclesiastical History of Socrates Scholasticus Robert W. Thomson, 2001 The Ecclesiastical History by Socrates Scholasticus had an unusual transmission in Armenia In 695 the first translation made in the sixth century was completely revised It was much abbreviated and changed while at the same time additions of various kinds were introduced Now for the first time that adapted text of the Ecclesiastical History is translated from the classical Armenian In this English rendering all the additions to the original text are highlighted and studied from the perspective of earlier Armenian literary and theological traditions The Introduction assesses the possible motives for this adaptation of a well known History at the end of the seventh century Similar Armenian reworkings of foreign Histories the Georgian Chronicles and the Syriac Chronicle of the Patriarch Michael are much later Within Armenia the secondary version of Socrates became more influential than the first more exact translation The present book is thus of value for the study of Armenian history and theology in the period following the break with the imperial church of Constantinople concentrate on Classical Armenian and touch the dialects only sporadically Non literary data taken from Armenian dialects have largely remained outside of the scope of Indo European etymological considerations This book provides an up to date description of the Indo European lexical stock of Armenian with systematic inclusion of dialectal data It incorporates the lexical phonetic and morphological material in the Armenian dialects into the etymological treatment of the Indo European lexicon In this respect it is completely new

Between Paris and Fresno Dickran Kouymjian,2008

Religion Index

Two ,1995

Universum hagiographicum Basil Lourié,2006

Album of Armenian Paleography Michael E.

Stone,Dickran Kouymjian,Henning Lehmann,2002 The Album of Armenian Paleography provides a comprehensive selection of some 200 definitively dated handwritten texts sampled from among the 30 000 manuscripts preserved in the major public collections of Europe the Middle East the former USSR and North America Selected specimen pages from these manuscripts are presented in chronological order and span the period from AD 862 to 1911 Each text is illustrated by a high quality color facsimile of a typical page and is accompanied by an alphabet table for the folio in question and a sample transcription All photographs are new taken especially for the Album Thanks to the large format of the volume it has been possible to show all manuscript pages except the very largest in actual size In addition each facsimile page is accompanied by a color enlargement of several lines of the text enabling the reader to study the lettering in even greater detail In a separate section computerized tables are used to show changes in the forms of individual letters By following the development of letter shapes it is possible to discern the evolutionary process of the Armenian scripts in a far more detailed and sophisticated manner than the traditional division of the Armenian hands This provides much more precise datings than those previously available to scholars The foundations are thus laid for a better understanding of the chronology of Armenian manuscripts and the literature and art they contain This volume will be an indispensable tool for any serious student of the Armenian language literature and art and its innovative approach to the study of lettering will be of interest to paleographers and codicologists
