Daedalus Falling Robert M. Hertzberg, 2004-03 Written in the form of a memoir Daedalus Falling is the autobiography of Daedalus the first maker of ancient Greek myth the first master craftsman the first inventor of ingenious devices the first man to create monumental sculpture the first man to fly the chief architect to the legendary King Minos of Crete and the builder of the labyrinth in which Minos housed the Minotaur Daedalus Falling is a fascinating and often very moving book Had I turned pages of it at a bookshop I would have taken it home to read and the fascination the interest the story itself and how well the author copes with it hold throughout the work There are many wonderful moments wonderful in the exact meaning of the word marvelously conceived and beautiful too You give the horror and cruelty of those times as well as the refinement vigorously and plausibly All the stuff on the birth of sculpture the making of a statue is marvelously done filled me with pleasure and admiration To me the first time anyone did that The book finished nearly two weeks ago has left a rich residue a world I think and feel about A most original book then for which I thank you It is as I said very good fascinating moving It holds one A real achievement Sybille Bedford in a personal letter to the author Imagining that this mythical Leonardo was in fact the architect of the Palace of Minos at Knossos this story is set in the middle of the second millennium B C fusing legend and myth with what archeologists know and what they surmise about the pre historic Mediterranean world

Travelling Heroes Robin Lane Fox, 2008-09-04 This remarkable and daringly original book proposes a new way of thinking about the Greeks and their myths in the age of the great Homeric hymns It combines a lifetime s familiarity with Greek literature and history with the latest archeological discoveries and the author s own journeys to the main sites in the story to describe how particular Greeks of the eighth century BC travelled east and west around the Mediterranean and how their extraordinary journeys shaped their ideas of their gods and heroes It gathers together stories and echoes from many different ancient cultures not just the Greek Assyria Egypt the Phoenician traders and ranges from Mesopotamia to the Rio Tinto at Huelva in modern Portugal Its central point is the Jebel Aqra the great mountain on the north Syrian coast which Robin Lane Fox dubs the southern Olympus and around which much of the action of the book turns Robin Lane Fox rejects the fashionable view of Homer and his near contemporary Hesiod as poets who owed a direct debt to texts and poems from the near East and by following the trail of the Greek travellers shows that they were rather in debt to their own countrymen With characteristic flair he reveals how these travellers progenitors of tales which have inspired writers and historians for thousands of years understood the world before the beginnings of philosophy and western thought Displacement Leslie Harrison,2009-07-14

Leslie Harrison s collection marks the arrival of an assured new poetic voice Chosen as the winner of the 2008 Bakeless Prize in poetry by guest judge Eavan Boland Displacement addresses questions of place and of course displacement from marriage and home and explores the aftershocks of being uprooted physically and emotionally Paired with Harrison s natural keen sense of rhythm the central themes of impermanence and loss are heightened by the poems impeccable structure In a masterful display of formal precision the collection is filled with engaging contradictions says Eavan Boland In her introduction Boland writes There is a poignancy poise and a presence about this book and about its traffic between secrecy and disclosure that allows it to have an unusual force and a true grip on its reader This is a real lyric journey and the reader will take it too The Flame in the Maze Caitlin Sweet,2015-10-20

From the author of The Door in the Mountain this tale of ancient gods and mythic monsters is a book of both horror and beauty Ilana C Myer author of Last Song Before Night The Princess Ariadne is scheming to bring her hated half brother Asterion to ultimate ruin Asterion himself part human part bull is grappling with madness and pain in the labyrinth that lies within a sacred mountain And Chara his childhood friend is trying desperately to find him In a different prison Icarus the bird boy who cannot fly plans his escape with his father Daedalus and plots revenge upon the princess he once loved All of their paths are about to come together at last drawn by fire hatred love and hope and all of them will be changed From an author who has been nominated for Sunburst Locus and Aurora Awards and called a formidable new talent this is a powerful fantasy set in the world of ancient Crete SF Site
