The Union and Its Members Julian Barling, Clive Fullagar, E. Kevin Kelloway, 1992 This work explores three key topics in social psychology the manner in which labor unions shape organizational behavior a relationship which has been effectively ignored in the literature the organization of the union itself a fascinating test case for the organizational psychologist and the way in which theories and methods of organizational psychology may assist labor organizations in achieving their goals Since the union maintains unique characteristics of democracy conflict and voluntary participation within a larger organization the authors offer a detailed study of a union's dynamics including demographic and personality predictors of membership voting behavior union commitment and loyalty the nature of participation leadership styles collective bargaining among other topics This is the first book to be published in the new Industrial Organizational Psychology Series It will be of interest to not only industrial organizational psychologists in industry academia and private and public organizations but to graduate students in psychology departments and business schools and to academics and professionals in business and management studying industrial relations

Physicians at War Fritz Allhoff, 2008-03-22 This paper offers a brief examination of ethical health issues arising from military operations and outlines which if any of these ethical health issues apply to current Australian Defence Force ADF military operations The transparency of military operations provided through real time global media reporting and the Internet has raised public awareness of incidents that can be viewed broadly as ethical issues or dilemmas While many of these issues are not new it is the changing context of post cold war military operations and scale and demand of humanitarian operations that places new requirements on how the ADF best addresses these potential issues before they become critical incidents In identifying potential ethical issues arising from military health operations it is recognized that military health personnel operate within a command and control organizational structure and associated culture It is also recognized that the complexity of the issues and the environment within which military health personnel are expected to operate will raise ethical health issues not likely to be encountered to the same degree by those health practitioners operating in the average suburban practice or hospital except when health personnel are confronted with large scale emergencies such as those encountered with recent terrorist attacks and massacres
