Behaviour In Business Context:

Behaviour in a Business Context Richard Turton, 1991 Behavioural Business Janneke Blijlevens, Meg Elkins, Ananta Neelim, 2023-04-10 This book explores all aspects of the new and emerging area of behavioural business. This book identifies behavioural business as a powerful application of the latest insights and tools from psychology and behavioural science to decision making in business management and policy. This book uniquely positions behavioural business as different from both behavioural economics and psychology. This book instead applies a fresh focus on behavioural interventions in policy and business. This book introduces this new area and showcases what it contributes to a number of important contemporary business and policy issues. These include behavioural insights for managers in diverse and multi-cultural workplaces, designers of organisations, interventions, products and services, financial advisors, public policy makers, business creatives and entrepreneurs, as well as charity and NGO practitioners. This book summarises state-of-the-art knowledge in the areas of expertise of the authors who are members of the Behavioural Business Lab at RMIT University in Australia. This book will interest advanced students in related subjects as well as academics and policy makers hoping to learn and apply behavioural insights to their areas of expertise.

Stakeholder Thinking in Marketing Michael Jay Polonsky, 2005 Stakeholder thinking in marketing. Stakeholder thinking is becoming a core part of marketing as well as other business-related disciplines. A search of the business source primer database found that prior to 1995 there are 58 articles using the term stakeholder in their title and 27 academic marketing related articles with stakeholder as a key term. The interest in stakeholder theory has however grown rapidly between January 2000 and November 2004 there were 228 articles using stakeholder theory in the title and 140 academic marketing related journal articles that examined stakeholder issues. In fact the American Marketing Association's AMA 2004 new definition of marketing expressly incorporates our responsibility to consider how marketing activities impact stakeholders. Marketing is an organizational function and a set of processes for creating, communicating and delivering value to customers and for managing customer relationships in ways that benefit the organization and its stakeholders. Thus the AMA has recognised the core role of stakeholder thinking. While there is an increased interest in stakeholder thinking in marketing, an examination of the literature would seem to suggest that there is no unified view of how stakeholder thinking can be or should be integrated into theory or practice. Many of the stakeholder works in marketing and in other disciplines still focus on the social and ethical impacts of stakeholders. This may have been where much of stakeholder thinking initially gained its prominence but it is a broader strategic tool that can benefit a range of areas and was in fact the focus of Freeman's 1984 original work in the area. This is not to suggest that the general strategic implications of stakeholder thinking are not being considered as an increasingly number of works are looking at stakeholder implications in regards to exchange networks, relationship marketing and other issues related to strategy development. The papers in this special issue have considered a range of varying perspectives including corporate social responsibility, the impact of interacting with stakeholders relationship issues and broader discussions of stakeholder theory as a strategic tool These papers have taken a diverse range of perspectives including conceptual works case studies qualitative approaches and various empirical approaches to examining the issues of interest within various pieces The scope of papers included in the special as well as those not included identifies the breadth of relevance stakeholder thinking has for the application of all aspects of marketing theory and practice The question of how stakeholders and stakeholder theory can be considered in organisational activities and marketing theory is an issue that most certainly seems to warrant further consideration The works in this special issue have advanced this debate and identified some directions that could be considered Stakeholder thinking is however not necessarily a paradigm shift in marketing thinking although some might believe it is but rather it broadens existing concepts such as relationship marketing network theory organisational social responsibility and other areas Hopefully the papers presented in this special issue will encourage others to consider the inclusion of stakeholders into broader areas of marketing Any special issue editor has to thank a range of people for assistance with developing the special issue I would like to thank Audrey Gilmore and David Carson editors of EJM for allowing the special issue to be developed Their input through the process has been invaluable I would also like to thank the many authors of unsuccessful papers for submitting their work It was of course impossible to include all papers in the special issue but the breadth of coverage in regards to topics and geographic areas would seem to demonstrate the growing interest in stakeholder thinking within marketing Lastly it is imperative that I thank the reviewers without their assistance the special issue would not have been possible The following people reviewed papers for the special issue Anupam Jaju Gorge Mason University Bill Kilbourn Clemson University Bob Heiser New Mexico State University Catherine Elder eabode visi net Cathy L Hartman Utah State University David Waller University of Technology Sydney David Stewart Monash University Devashish Pujari McMaster University Dr Russell Casey Clayton State University Duane Windsor Rice University Edwin R Stafford Utah State University Felix Mavondo Monsah University Frank de Bakker University of Amsterdam Hamish Ratten University of Queensland J Tomas Gomez Arias St Mary s College of California Jeanne M Logsdon University of New Mexico John F Mahon University of Maine John Stanton University of Western Sydney Kamal Ghose University of South Australia Kelly Strong Iowa State University Kirk Davidson Mount St Mary s University Kim E Schatzel University of Michigan Dearborn Les Carlson Clemson University Linda McGilvray Massey University Marie Louise Fry University of Newcastle Australia Mary McKinley ESCM School of Business and Management Michael Beverland Monsah University Michael Hyman New Mexico State University Mike McCardle Western Michigan University Mike Reid Monash University Nick Grigoriou Royal Melbourne Institute of Technology Peter Scholem Monash University Rita Ferreira University of Navarra Romana Garma Victoria University Australia Ruhi Yahan Victoria University Australia Rujirutana Mandhachitara Long Island University Sabrina Helm Heinrich Heine University Duesseldorf Scott Vitell The University of Mississippi Sema Sakarya Bogazici University Srikanth Beldona

The Role of Loyalty in Ethical Leadership Ilka Bükér, 2016-08-03 Bachelor Thesis from the year 2016 in the subject Business economics Business Management Corporate Governance grade 1 7 University of Cologne language English abstract Leaders act as mediators between an organization and its employees They are agents of the organization and have a role model function for their followers Since leaders play a significant role in motivating ethical behaviour of their subordinates most scholars have focused on the consequences of leader behaviour on their followers However it is more complex and therefore ethical behaviour should be determined in a first step Imagine a situation in which someone detects a colleague hiding information about the environmental pollution of a new production process Is it ethically right to collaborate and be loyal to the colleagues and protect the entire organization Or is it ethically right to tell the truth to supervisors or the public to protect the environment and a larger society What about a situation in which someone observes a co worker manipulating sales numbers that are necessary to achieve group targets Is it ethically right to collaborate and maintain silence Or is it ethically right to tell the truth even though group objectives cannot be achieved by being honest What if jobs are related to achievement of objects and are possibly cut in case of not obtaining these targets Imagine a situation in which someone withholds relevant information about a customer to other members of the organization who do not work on the same team Is it ethically right to deprive these information in order to give an edge to the in group Or is it ethically right to share those details across all colleagues who hold a stake in order to improve the overall performance What is perceived as ethically right wrong or desirable differs across cultures organizations individuals and situations In contrast to the leader perspective of previous scholars and considering those differences Fehr Yam and Dang took a follower centric perspective on ethical leadership Within their novel conceptualization of ethical leader perception moralized leader behaviour can entail value consistent behaviour depending on what is morally relevant to an individual and the organizational culture If ethical leader behaviour is subject to moral values of an individual or of the organization it depends on either the organization and the leader s behaviour or the moral identity of a follower and the leader s behaviour if this behaviour is perceived as ethically right or desirable

Entrepreneurship and SME Research Rik Donckels,Asko Miettinen,2019-05-29 First published in 1997 the authors of the present volume provide brand new insights and empirical findings in the field of entrepreneurship and small business research The writers have highlighted three different key themes entrepreneurship start ups and growth and internationalisation The priority of most countries is growth competitiveness and employment In this context the relevance of promoting the creation of new enterprises and understanding the very nature and development of newly created and existing SMEs is becoming more important today The role of entrepreneurship and SMEs for economic and social development welfare and well being is going to be emphasised more than ever before The same holds for research in these fascinating fields This book gives an idea of the state of the art for the time being with its increasing conceptual methodological and empirical complexity and diversity
