Fluency and Reading Comprehension in Typical Readers and Dyslexic Readers: Volume II Manuel Soriano-Ferrer, Simone Aparecida Capellini, Giseli Donadon Germano, 2024-03-06 This Research Topic is the second edition of Fluency and reading comprehension in typical readers and dyslexics readers Volume I This Second Edition Research Topic is focused on the characterization of the reading writing difficulties and their comorbidities and in the analysis of evidence based recommendations for early interventions and treatment of these difficulties within the fields of neuropsychology speech language pathology and educational psychology Reading involves decoding and comprehension components and to become efficient it requires a large number of cognitive and linguistic processes Among those decoding failures can have different origins such as deficits in phonological and or visual processing In addition a child with reading difficulties might also have problems in the acquisition of writing and handwriting performance This is an important point to be discussed as reading and writing both suffer interference from vocabulary acquisition linguistic skills memory skills reading and writing practices and literacy methods These processes become important only when the professional needs to deal with students presenting learning difficulties Difficulty in using the knowledge of conversion rules between grapheme phoneme to word reading construction or phoneme grapheme for writing can be identified in schoolchildren with dyslexia dysgraphia and dysortography being a specific learning disorder with a neurological etiology In addition there is established evidence of a speech language processing basis students with specific learning disabilities can show a range of cognitive difficulties e.g rapid naming executive functioning working memory These presented difficulties interfere in their learning process impairing their learning development

Home Literacy Environment and Literacy Acquisition George Georgiou, Tomohiro Inoue, 2025-06-14 if supportLists This book provides a comprehensive and up to date overview of the literature on home literacy environment and its association with literacy skills in different languages and contexts Home literacy environment HLE an umbrella term that encompasses various activities parents engage in with their children has been studied extensively by psychologists linguists behavioral geneticists and educators However no systematic effort has been put into synthesizing this growing body of research in a coherent manner making it difficult for researchers and various stakeholders to understand the key points of past research while keeping up with the latest research findings To address this need the first part of the book provides an overview of the current literature on conceptualizations of HLE covering prominent theoretical models the measurement of HLE the potential extension and generalizability of models across contexts the intersections between home learning environment in literacy numeracy and other domains and the genetic and environmental etiology of literacy development The second section of the book hosts a wide variety of studies from all over the world conducted in English speaking countries UK U S Canada Finland Greece Turkey China Japan the Philippines and other Southeast Asian countries and Chile and other Latin American and Caribbean countries while it includes chapters with both typically developing children and children at familial risk of dyslexia The third section of this book offers a comprehensive collection of chapters on intervention studies examining the role of family literacy programs dialogic reading and onscreen digital access Together the 22 chapters of this book elucidate the complex nature of HLE and provide future research directions and instructional recommendations on how parents and policymakers can improve home literacy practices around the world As such this book is valuable for researchers educators and other professionals and the readership ranges from graduate students and scholars to parents and policymakers

Dyslexia George W. Hynd, Morris Cohen, 1983 Annals of Dyslexia Vol 51 2001 Ida, Que, 2001 Fluency and Reading Comprehension in Typical Readers and Dyslexics Readers Simone A. Capellini, Giseli D. Germano, 2018-02-22 Reading involves decoding and comprehension components and to become efficient it requires a large number of cognitive and linguistic processes Among those the phonological awareness the alphabetic principle the decoding the fluency the lexical development and the text comprehension development The reading comprehension is strongly related with the development of vocabulary oral language linguistic skills memory skills and ability to make inferences and the world experiences of each individual These processes become important only when the professional needs to deal with students presenting difficulties in learning how to read The difficulty using the knowledge of conversion rules between grapheme and phoneme to the word reading construction characterizes the dyslexia which is a specific learning disorder with a neurological source These difficulties presented by students with dyslexia interfere in their learning process impairing the learning development Knowing and following the reading development and its processes as well as obtaining the punctuation of fluency abilities and students comprehension allow us to understand what happens when the student presents difficulties to read This could help in the identification of learning disabilities and in the development of intervention programs
