Apocalypse South Anthony Dyer Hoefer, 2012      Apocalypse South Anthony Dyer Hoefer, 2012 While John Winthrop might have famously uttered the phrase city upon a hill on the way to Massachusetts the strands of millennialism and exceptionalism that remain so central to U S political discourse are now dominated by eschatological visions that have emerged from the particular historical experiences of the U S South Despite the strategic exploitation of this reality by political communicators scholars in the humanities have paid little attention to the eschatological visions offered by southern religious culture Fortunately writers and artists have not ignored such matters compared to their academic counterparts southern novelists have been far better attuned to a southern apocalyptic imaginary a field of reference drawn from the cosmology of southern evangelical Protestantism that maps the apocalyptic possibilities of cataclysm judgment deliverance and even revolution onto the landscape of the region Apocalypse South rectifies the omissions in existing scholarship by interrogating the role of apocalyptic discourse in selected works of fiction by four southern writers William Faulkner Richard Wright Randall Kenan and Dorothy Allison In doing so it reinvigorates discussions of religion in southern literary scholarship and introduces a new element in the ongoing investigation into how regional identities function in notions of national mission and American exceptionalism Engaging concerns of religion race sexuality and community in fiction from the 1930s to the present Apocalypse South offers a new conceptual framework for considering what has long been considered southern Gothic literature a framework less concerned with the conventions of a particular literary genre than with the ways in which literature exposes and even tries to make sense of the contradictions within cultures      Apocalypse South Kyle Watson, 2000-07-20 When his family disappears Dakota Cross begins to search for answers that will leave him wondering if he is dealing with mysteries of the apocalypse and supernatural forces or a planned conspiracy His search for answers leads to a riveting chase by a brutal Federal Marshall who is relentless in his pursuit But why does Dakota receive a visit from a CIA agent And why is the Marshall hunting him With society drastically changing since his family disappearance Dakota finds what he believes is the truth behind the mystery Author bio Kyle Watson interest in apocalyptic events has lead him to research the writings of experts in the fields of Biblical prophecy supernatural phenomenon and scientific explanations He is currently working on his next novel a suspense thriller      Presbyterians and American Culture Bradley J. Longfield, 2013-01-01 This book provides a history of Presbyterians in American culture from the early eighteenth to the late twentieth century Longfield assesses both the theological and cultural development of American Presbyterianism with particular focus on the mainline tradition that is expressed most prominently in the Presbyterian Church U S A He explores how Presbyterian churches and individuals rooted in those churches influenced and were influenced by the values attitudes perspectives beliefs and ideals assumed by Americans in the course of American history The book will serve as an important introduction to Presbyterian history that will interest historians students and church leaders alike      A Climber's Guide to

Comparative Approaches to African Literatures Bernth Lindfors, 2022-05-20 Some of the essays in this book notably those concerned with examining Western influences on sub Saharan African writings tracing Shakespearean and Brechtian echoes in Nigerian drama for instance or following the footprints of Sherlock Holmes in Swahili detective fiction fit the traditional definition of comparative literature

These are essays that cross national literary boundaries and sometimes transcend language barriers as well. They look for correspondences in related literary phenomena from widely dispersed areas of the globe bringing together what is akin from what is akimbo. But most of the essays included here involve closer comparisons. Two focus on works produced in different languages within the same African nation: Yoruba and English in Nigeria; Afrikaans and English in South Africa; and one presents a taxonomy of dominant literary forms in English in three East African nations. Others concentrate on the oeuvre of a single author and on the likely future output of exiled writers who soon will be returning home. One essay contrasts discursive tendencies within the same text and another investigates conflicting African and Western religious beliefs. A great variety of comparative methodologies is deployed here; not all of these are transnational, multilingual, or pluralistic in scope. The last two groups of essays deal with matters of characterization and authorial reputation. Studies of the depiction of African Americans, politicians, and women in a wide range of African literary texts are followed by an assessment of the current standing of anglophone Africa's leading authors. In entering such highly contested terrain, the comparatist approach adopted has been that of the neutral witness to early African attempts; comparatists in their own way to define an African canon of classic texts. Authors discussed include Ama Ata Aidoo (Ghana), Chinua Achebe (Nigeria), John Pepper Clark (Cyprian), Ekwensi (D. O. Fagunwa), Wole Soyinka (Nigeria), Peter Abrahams (J. M. Coetzee), Nadine Gordimer (Alex La Guma), Thomas Mofolo (Es'kia Mphahlele), and Karel Schoeman (South Africa). J.M. Coetzee's Austerities (Graham Bradshaw, Michael Neill, 2016-05-06) Representing a wide range of critical and theoretical perspectives, this volume examines J. M. Coetzee's novels from Dusklands to Diary of a Bad Year. The choice of essays reflects three broad goals: aligning the South African dimension of Coetzee's writing with his late modernist aesthetic; exploring the relationship between Coetzee's novels and his essays on linguistics; and paying particular attention to his more recent fictional experiments. These objectives are realized in essays focusing on, among other matters, the function of names and etymology in Coetzee's fiction; the vexed relationship between art and politics in apartheid South Africa; the importance of film in Coetzee's literary sensibility; Coetzee's reworkings of Defoe; the paradoxes inherent in confessional narratives; ethics and the controversial politics of reading; Disgrace; intertextuality and the fictional self-consciousness of Slow Man. Through its pronounced emphasis on the novelist's later work, the collection points towards a narratological and linguistic reassessment of the Coetzee canon. The Status of Religious Instruction for Children Under Sixteen Years of Age (Sister Josefita Marie, 1925) When the Earth Tilts (Carter Knox, 2025-05-11) The world was predictable. Safe. Until the night it wasn't. Caden Bellroy is just a normal sixteen-year-old living in a quiet suburb, sharing inside jokes with his twin sister Candace and going through life without a care. But everything changes the night he wakes up to a nightmare he never saw coming. The Earth tilts. Not just metaphorically, but literally. An unimaginable shift in the planet's axis alters the very fabric of reality. Suddenly, gravity betrays them; oceans rise in rebellion; entire cities crumble like sandcastles, and time itself feels broken. Each month, the tilt returns, claiming thousands of lives in a violent merciless cycle But the Earth isn't just changing it's mutating When an unnatural lightning storm strikes it doesn't just kill It transforms Those caught in its path are twisted into something monstrous beasts creatures mindless husks of what they once were No one knows why No one knows who will be next In the first Tilt Caden loses his mother In the second he loses himself Now stranded in a world where trust is deadly love is a liability and survival is a cruel game Caden must do the impossible find his mother and find his way home all while battling starvation despair and the horrifying truth of what he's becoming Because in a world where the ground beneath your feet can't be trusted the biggest danger isn't the Earth's tilt it's what you'll become because of it A heart-pounding emotionally gripping survival thriller where every second counts and every choice could mean life or death When the Earth Tilts will keep you on edge until the very last page

Education pamphlets, 1922     The Sculptural Program of the Verso of the West Façade of Reims Cathedral Donna L. Sadler, 1984     Peculiar Whiteness Justin Mellette, 2021-03-01 Peculiar Whiteness Racial Anxiety and Poor Whites in Southern Literature 1900-1965 argues for deeper consideration of the complexities surrounding the disparate treatment of poor whites throughout southern literature and attests to how broad such experiences have been While the history of prejudice against this group is not the same as the legacy of violence perpetrated against people of color in America individuals regarded as white trash have suffered a dehumanizing process in the writings of various white authors Poor white characters are frequently maligned as grotesque and anxiety-inducing especially when they are aligned in close proximity to blacks or to people with disabilities Thus as a symbol much has been asked of poor whites and various iterations of the label e.g. white trash tenant farmers or even people with a little less money than average have been subject to a broad spectrum of judgment pity compassion fear and anxiety Peculiar Whiteness engages key issues in contemporary critical race studies whiteness studies and southern studies both literary and historical Through discussions of authors including Charles Chesnutt Thomas Dixon Sutton Griggs Erskine Caldwell Lillian Smith William Faulkner and Flannery O'Connor we see how whites in a position of power work to maintain their status often by finding ways to recategorize and marginalize people who might not otherwise have seemed to fall under the auspices or boundaries of white trash     Apocalypse South Anthony D.
