

When a top-secret South American carrying two nuclear warheads crashes and burns in the Utah desert, an Air Force search team makes the shocking discovery that the plane has exploded and the nukes are gone. They face a Broken Arrow - the military code name for a lost nuclear weapon.

This critically acclaimed suspense, enough to win the award for the video of the year, features John Travolta (John Deane), Kevin Costner (Major American), and Christian Slater (John Deane's brother John Deane). The film's heart beats in the hands of John Travolta. The result is a non-stop nuclear powered thriller with some of the most exciting pulse-pounding action sequences ever captured on film.

Regimented Air Force pilot - Major John Deane (Travolta) has stolen the warheads, and is ready to depart to launch a major American city if the government doesn't pay his price. Only his former Air Force buddy, Captain Ray (Costner), knows how well enough to stop him.

As the clock ticks down to ground zero, this is what it's like and emotional park night. (Samantha Mathis, How To Make An American Quilt (The American Dreaming). Together, they bring high speed truck chases, flying car battles, aerial assaults by helicopter and even an anti-aircraft, zero-gravity nuclear explosion. It's a non-stop action ride to stop the highly trained, highly motivated Deane from carrying out his treasonous plan of nuclear terror.

John Travolta has inspired his special brand of high velocity filmmaking into a masterpiece of cinematic grandeur. He's breaking into cinematic stardom, he's got it all in and present in his hands. In BROKEN ARROW, Travolta gives you the edge of excitement.

"SHOOTING" THE ARROW

That's a military term. For a few nuclear warheads actually exists in story form. Even more engineering in the film than it actually did happen - and get just one. (Samantha Mathis, How To Make An American Quilt (The American Dreaming). Together, they bring high speed truck chases, flying car battles, aerial assaults by helicopter and even an anti-aircraft, zero-gravity nuclear explosion. It's a non-stop action ride to stop the highly trained, highly motivated Deane from carrying out his treasonous plan of nuclear terror.

play in true life events, such as the 1987 sinking of a nuclear submarine with two nuclear warheads aboard and a B-1 bomber that crashed in the Mediterranean. In both cases, the warheads were never recovered.

John Travolta's film are renowned for their extremely complex, high intensity situations and BROKEN ARROW was no exception. Over 60,000 rounds of ammunition were fired during the making of the film. In true War style, each actor was assigned a weapon specially suited to their character. For example, a wood-grip Barrett machine gun that fired 1,200 rounds a minute proved to be an elegant yet lethal weapon for John Travolta's John Deane. In addition, two customized sniper's rifles, each complete with a special sniper's grip, stainless steel barrel, Red Ring, red dot laser and high-tech night vision scope were specially built for the film valued at about $24,000 apiece, they are the only ones in existence.

For the spectacular dramatic sequence in an abandoned copper mine, a complete interior making of the great mine, used for the exterior in southern Arizona, was built in an airplane hangar-sized sound stage at Twentieth Century Fox Studios. Fully equipped with a working freight elevator and an underground mine, the set also featured special break-away sections that could be slowly maneuvered during shooting, giving director John Wood complete freedom of movement while filming his trademark, high powered gun battles in a seemingly confined space.

Many elements of the astounding, unprecedented helicopter and train sequences as well as all of the B-1 bomber bomber (an imaginative extension of the U.S. Air Force's B-2 Stealth bomber) flying sequences, were accomplished through special effects wizardry - including model vehicles and landscapes, and blue and green screen compositing to combine the live action and miniature elements, computer animation and motion control photography.

Having two athletic stars in the leading roles proved to be a tremendous asset. For the film's electrifying break, Slater's character had to pull himself along the underside of a speeding train. Realizing that today's sophisticated audience would know if he faked it, Slater insisted on doing the incredibly dangerous stunt himself - adding a powerful degree of realism to the trademark, high intensity action for which John Travolta's film are world famous.
