About Daisies:

Lines of Thought Lance J. Rips, 2011 Lines of Thought addresses how we are able to think about abstract possibilities How can we think about math despite the immateriality of numbers sets and other mathematical entities How are we able to think about what might have happened if history had taken a different turn Questions like these turn up in nearly every part of cognitive science and they are central to our human position of having only limited knowledge concerning what is or might be true Because we cannot experience hypothetical or future events or abstract concepts we cannot use our ordinary sense of perception or memory to think about these subjects so what underlies our ability to make these assumptions Lance Rips explores people s beliefs about possibilities as they arise in the context of basic concepts including numbers causality and reasons He argues that beliefs about these concepts cannot be meaningfully reduced to perceptual information remembered instances or probabilities He also claims that analogies to cognitive perception models are equally unhelpful in understanding what makes thinking of possibilities possible Instead he makes the case that our abilities here depend on the intrinsic hardwiring of the human mind Lines of Thought provides an overview and a point of view on research in higher level cognitive science integrating theories from psychology philosophy and linguistics The book is written in an accessible style that will provide students with essential background for their own thoughts about this domain Poets Should NOT Write About Politics Jerry T Johnson, 2021-06-01 The Sinclair Poetry Prize for 2020 Jerry Johnson s new book Poets Should Not Write about Politics immediately undermines its title in seemingly innocent poems about daisies bison and kittens that hit hard in their love for America and their rage against her injustices Musicality and rhythm reinforce this message in these poems as in the poem Trains where they ground a voice that aches for a different world even as it honors the beauties of this one we find night has taken the helm the crescendo climbs the stars overcome the darkness i overcome the darkness my grief the darkness of my soul and my train moves on and on and my train moves on and on This is a collection of longing and hope and passion Laurel S Peterson Poet Laureate Norwalk CT 2016 2019 Professor English Norwalk Community College We land in this world travel leave and yet as Jerry T Johnson examines in this engrossing collection we cannot leave history behind Through deft storytelling he highlights the past and future and how art needs to move beyond pleasantries The Jim Crow signs may fade but the danger remains current A thought provoking and highly enjoyable book Jane Ormerod writer and editor great weather for MEDIA In Poets Should Not Write About Politics Jerry T Johnson proves in the opening poem and many of the poems that follow exactly why poets need to write about politics While many of the poems focus on politics in the broader sense of the word in a gifted and challenging way my favorite poems including A Song Of Remembrance For Mama and I Dare Not Divulge marry the personal with the political in a way that s deeply impactful and will linger with me for a long time Yet there is joy here too and laughter a sharp turn of phrase surprising it out of me at unexpected times Caitlan Jans Editor of Authors Publish Literary Magazine Tiny houses and their builders [by E.A. Hart]. Elizabeth Anna

Hart,1876 Contemporary Plays Thomas H. Dickinson,Jack Randall Crawford,1925 Teachers Magazine ,1913 Our Paper ,1913 Primary Plans Elizabeth P.
