Architects House Themselves:

Architects House Themselves Michael Webb,1994 Ever since Thomas Jefferson built Monticello American architects have used their own houses as laboratories testing new ideas and putting a fresh spin on the old To select the best of our own era Michael Webb traveled coast to coast talking with 150 architects and looking for houses and apartments that respond creatively to the challenge of site context and budget He chose 41 recent examples and six modern classics Together they demonstrate how rich is the idea of house Pioneers like Schindler Neutra Wright Gropius Charles and Ray Eames and Philip Johnson explored new ways of enclosing space and relating buildings to nature They shocked their contemporaries and inspired their successors The latest work shown here ranges even more widely from a tree house in Berkeley to a playful weekend cottage on Lake Michigan from a cluster of wooden towers in a Florida palm grove to a Toronto house that fuses craft and technology Sophisticated New York apartments daring hillside houses in Los Angeles and witty variations on the New England vernacular reflect America's regional diversity Houses are grouped by type Over 200 color and vintage black and white photos plans and sections are woven together with lively descriptions of what each architect built and why These architectural adventures offer new ways of satisfying practical and emotional needs and write another chapter in the history of the American house They demonstrate the timeless virtues of light and space openness and privacy fine craftsmanship and economical construction Everyone who has dreamed of building a unique house or is planning piecemeal improvements can find inspiration in this eclectic anthology

Architects' Houses Stephen Crafti, 2015-06-01 Architects Houses offers an insight into how contemporary architects live in the homes they have designed specifically for themselves and their family from warehouses to apartments from an entirely new build to a substantial renovation In the absence of a client and a formal brief architects can be truly adventurous exploring groundbreaking unconventional ideas and materials in designing their own houses In this lavishly photographed book Crafti looks at the fascinating details of the process involved as much as the end result What were the challenges the hardships and the problems faced Did ideas have to be modified to suit the budget Were there compromises along the way What discoveries were made Architects Houses also explores the things that didn't quite go to plan Their insights and journeys will appeal to those looking for fresh ideas that go beyond the traditional offerings by architects Architect and Engineer, 1913 The Custom Home Vernon D.
