Arguing And Communicative Asymmetry:

Arguing and Communicative Asymmetry Marco Rühl, 2002 Why is it that people are often inclined to accept irrational arguments or to reject rational ones It is the author argues because discussions in everyday life are both dialectical conducted with the best possible solution in mind and rhetorical organized by the interactors in the form of a discursive event By combining argumentation theoretical and discourse analytical insights and revisiting ancient and medieval rhetoric and dialectics this study transcends the assumption of a symmetrical communicative situation in which only good arguments matter It redefines dialectical concepts e.g. acceptability or conclusiveness from a rhetorical and dialogic perspective and is thereby able to address colloquial speech arguing as the inherently asymmetrical discursive event it is Contents Argumentation in colloquial speech Dialogically organized interactive event Argumentation as a Communicative Phenomenon Dialogic Rhetoric and Argumentative Semantics A Typology of Interactive Macro structures of Arguing External Communication in Social Media During Asymmetric Conflicts Bernd Hirschberger, 2021-07-12 Social media increasingly shapes the way in which we perceive conflicts and conflict parties abroad Conflict parties therefore have started using social media strategically to influence public opinion abroad This book explores the phenomenon by examining 1 which strategies of external communication conflict parties use during asymmetric conflicts and 2 what shapes the selection of these communication strategies In a comprehensive case study of the conflict in Israel and Palestine Bernd Hirschberger shows that the selection of strategies of external communication is shaped by the asymmetric conflict structure Cultures and Politics of Global Communication: Volume 34, Review of International Studies Costas M. Constantinou, Oliver P. Richmond, Alison Watson, 2008-06-12 This special issue of Review of International Studies focuses on how International Relations IR communicates with the world and vice versa It opens up the discussion of the politics of communication within the discipline and beyond With a variety of different mediums ranging from media film memory music culture and emotions this book seeks to accentuate their importance for IR both as a source of knowledge and as an ideational exchange which shapes IR It examines the diverse ways that multidisciplinary thinkers try to understand and explain global routes mobilities cultures commodifications singularities discourses and aestheticisations This special issue specifically addresses three interrelated themes How international and global studies approach the question of communication how to conceptualise and respond to the globalisation of communication and how global problems get communicated within and across the institutional settings of the epistemic disciplines in general and the IR discipline in particular Confrontation Talk Ian Hutchby, 2013-11-05 Using conversation analysis to explore the nature of argument asymmetry and power on talk radio this book focuses on the interplay between the structures of talk in interaction and the structures of participation on talk radio In the process it demonstrates how conversation analysis may be used to account for power as a feature of institutional discourse To address a number of key issues in the study of institutional communication and conflict talk a case study of a

British talk radio show is presented stimulating some penetrating questions What is distinctive about interaction on talk radio What is the basis of the communicative asymmetries between hosts and callers How are their arguments constructed and in what ways does the setting enable and constrain the production of conflict talk These questions are answered through the detailed study of conversational phenomena informed by a critical concern for the relationship between talk and social structure This book will be of interest to a wide readership consisting of academics advanced undergraduates and postgraduate students in a range of courses in sociology linguistics media communication cultural studies anthropology and popular culture

Theories of Information, Communication and Knowledge Fidelia Ibekwe-SanJuan, Thomas M Dousa, 2013-08-30 This book addresses some of the key questions that scientists have been asking themselves for centuries what is knowledge What is information How do we know that we know something How do we construct meaning from the perceptions of things Although no consensus exists on a common definition of the concepts of information and communication few can reject the hypothesis that information whether perceived as object or as process is a pre condition for knowledge Epistemology is the study of how we know things anglophone meaning or the study of how scientific knowledge is arrived at and validated francophone conception To adopt an epistemological stance is to commit oneself to render an account of what constitutes knowledge or in procedural terms to render an account of when one can claim to know something An epistemological theory imposes constraints on the interpretation of human cognitive interaction with the world It goes without saying that different epistemological theories will have more or less restrictive criteria to distinguish what constitutes knowledge from what is not If information is a pre condition for knowledge acquisition giving an account of how knowledge is acquired should impact our comprehension of information and communication as concepts While a lot has been written on the definition of these concepts less research has attempted to establish explicit links between differing theoretical conceptions of these concepts and the underlying epistemological stances This is what this volume attempts to do It offers a multidisciplinary exploration of information and communication as perceived in different disciplines and how those perceptions affect theories of knowledge

American Book Publishing Record, 2003 Transatlantic Tug-of-war Ingo Peters, 2006 Within the rhetoric on transatlantic relations the consensus prevails that in order to cope with global challenges constructive engagement and effective cooperation between the United States and its European partners is required However regarding actual policy making particularly subsequent to 9 11 and the war in Iraq conflicting agendas and policies on both sides of the Atlantic are easily discernible The articles in this book deal with various societal political and security issues constituting frame and context of the transatlantic relationship in order to explain the contradiction between declarations and deeds and to evaluate the chances for narrowing the policy gap

Books In Print 2004-2005 Ed Bowker Staff, Staff Bowker, Ed, 2004 The Complexity of Relationships in Action Research Ben Boog, 1998 The relationship between researchers and research is of great importance to action researchers It is usually characterized as dialogical

recognizing the competencies of both groups of actors involved But in theory as well as in practice it appears to be a very complex issue The aim of this third book of the Dutch Action Research Network is to discuss a number of aspects related to that complexity A great mixture of experiences new insights concepts and methodological devices is presented In the last part of this book a number of methodological issues are analyzed The book ends with some general conclusions about the strategic role of adequate relationships in action research
