Arthur Erickson,2022 Whether he was designing buildings and spaces for universities museums performing arts or libraries Arthur Erickson was preoccupied with intersections of people of cultures and of ideas Arthur Erickson on Learning Systems collects writings by an architect advocating for interdisciplinary approaches to education and the methods for sharing knowledge In pieces on one of his mid 1960s masterpieces the Simon Fraser University campus Erickson explains how he intended to avoid compartmentalization between academic disciplines by thinking of a campus as akin to a biological system capable of adaptation He outlines how his design placed a spine through the campus to circulate people and communication between them while making space for additional buildings as they became needed These writings also show Erickson reflecting on whether his original vision was maintained by future development on the site and considering how university education changed in the decades that followed An introduction by Melanie O Brian nuances Erickson s big picture thinking draws parallels between curatorial practices and his approach to learning spaces and discusses the experiences of campus users following university expansion and increased specialization among academic disciplines This title is a collaboration between Concordia University Press and the Canadian Centre for Architecture and is part of the Building Arguments series death Erickson wrote this manuscript to pay tribute to Kripacz and to tell the world of the importance of Francisco s creations With stunning images from some of greatest photographers of the day such as Yousuf Karsh this book looks at

Arthur Erickson University of Calgary. Canadian Architectural Archives, 2016 Arthur Erickson Layered Landscapes Drawings from the Canadian Architectural Archives is the inaugural publication of our Canadian Modern series. It presents and expands upon the content of the traveling exhibition curated by Canadian Architectural Archives chief curator and archivist Linda Fraser with architectural historian Geoffrey Simmins. The act of layering has both practical and metaphoric connotations; it refers to Erickson's design process in which he added layers of experience and inhabitation, enclosure and vistas onto a landscape, privileging the horizontal over the vertical. For Erickson, line tells everything and these drawings of some of his most inventive buildings remind us of the value of hand sketches in the architectural design process. Canadian Modern is a peer-reviewed series focused on the cultural and architectural history of twentieth-century Canada, published by Dalhousie Architectural Press. The series promotes scholarship on the architecture, built environment and landscape of Canada. Focused on publications grounded in archival materials, this collection aims to enhance existing research and stimulate future investigations while positioning Canadian debates and practices within a broad international framework.

Book jacket Arthur Erickson Architects Arthur Erickson Architects, 1982 Eppich House II Greg Bellerby, 2019-03-15 Eppich House 2 tells the story through gorgeous images and Arthur Erickson's own words of how a unique collaboration with dream clients resulted in his most striking residence. One glimpse of the cascading steel beams mirrored in the reflecting pond and it's clear that the Hugo and Brigitte Eppich house is a singular achievement, a daring experiment that embodies Erickson's West Coast modernist ideas about site, material and form. Erickson's first steel residence explores both the structural and aesthetic possibilities of the material with curved beams, dyed cladding and milled furnishings designed by Francisco Kripacz, all features that would have been near impossible on a regular commission. But after seeing the first Eppich House built for Hugo's twin brother Helmut, Hugo entrusted Erickson with creating and furnishing the entire house inside and out, another first for Erickson and made available the Eppich brothers' steel fabricating plants which built virtually every component of the home. Architecture expert Greg Bellerby weaves into his essay extensive interviews with Erickson, Eppich and architect Nick Milkovich, as well as contributions from Cornelia Oberlander, the home's landscape designer, to tell the fascinating story of an uncommon vision realized in steel and glass.

Arthur Erickson, 1999 Web site describes the archival material held in the Canadian Architecture collection, CAC of McGill University, documenting the Middle East projects of the architect Arthur Erickson.
