State, Society and the Market in Contemporary Vietnam Hue-Tam Ho Tai, Mark Sidel, 2012-11-27 Lively debates around property access to resources legal rights and the protection of livelihoods have unfolded in Vietnam since the economic reforms of 1986 Known as Doi Moi changing to the new these have gradually transformed the country from a socialist state to a society in which a communist party presides over a neoliberal economy By exploring the complex relationship between property the state society and the market this book demonstrates how both developmental issues and state society relations in Vietnam can be explored through the prism of property relations and property rights The essays in this collection demonstrate how negotiations over property are deeply enmeshed with dynamics of state formation and covers debates over the role of the state and its relationship to various levels of society the intrusion of global forces into the lives of marginalized communities and individuals and how community norms and standards shape and reshape national policy and laws With contributors from around the world this book will be of great interest to students and scholars of East and Southeast Asian studies including politics culture society and law as well as those interested in the role of the state and property relations more generally

New Religions and State's Response to Religious Diversification in Contemporary Vietnam Chung Van Hoang, 2017-07-03 This book approaches newly emerging religious groups through the interplay between religious and non religious spheres in the specific context of Vietnam It considers the new religious groups as a part of religious reconfiguration in Vietnam caused by intensified interactions among these spheres It explores changes of relationship between religions and changes between the religious sphere and the political economic and public spheres in contemporary Vietnam Specifically it traces trajectories of religious development in relation to politico economic changes in this rapidly modernising nation It tests a hypothesis that at least some new yet unrecognized new religious groups have a positive active role in modernisation rather than a negative reactive role To this end the book draws on a number of research approaches and methodologies in an effort to provide readers with a multi faceted understanding of Vietnam s new religious groups The research is interdisciplinary in orientation drawing on sociology and anthropology It is also comparative in that it bases its argument on a consideration of three distinct new religious groups in Vietnam The research is also qualitative and ethnographic in that it drew on some of the techniques associated with participant observation during a sustained period of fieldwork amongst the three religious groups The concept of religious reconfiguration developed in this book provides a framework for the study of religion in Vietnam which opens the way to further analysis from a comparative perspective Meanwhile an emphasis upon religious reinvention which addresses processes of remaking transforming legitimating and accommodating can be useful for research into New Religious Movements elsewhere in Asia A research in the challenges of new religions could act as a catalyst for interdisciplinary studies based on detailed empirical study of religious diversity and of religious freedom by other scholars It is hoped that this research might help to give a voice to religious minorities that are often the victim of stereotyping misunderstanding and punitive treatment The book is suitable for post graduate students and social researchers who are interested in religious revival religious diversification State religion relationships and State s regulation of new religions

Vietnam Magali Barbieri, Danièle Bélanger, 2009-03-18 Reconfiguring Families in Contemporary Vietnam chronicles and analyzes the most significant change for families in Vietnam's recent past the transition to a market economy referred to as Doi Moi in Vietnamese and generally translated as the renovation Two decades have passed since the wide ranging institutional transformations that took place reconfigured the ways families produce and reproduce The downsizing of the socialist welfare system and the return of the household as the unit of production and consumption redefined the boundaries between the public and private This volume is the first to offer a multidisciplinary perspective that sets its gaze exclusively on processes at work in the everyday lives of families and on the implications for gender and intergenerational relations By focusing on families this book shifts the spotlight from macro transformations of the renovation era orchestrated by those in power to micro level transformations experienced daily in households between husbands and wives parents and children grandparents and other family members
