Contemporary Policing Personnel Issues And Trends:

Contemporary Policing Mark L. Dantzker, 1997 Contemporary Policing Personnel Issues Trends is an edited volume that provides students with a complete picture of current policing issues. The collection draws on the ideas of several well-known academics and scholars. Arranged thematically, this text fully covers the standard topics in the field including stress, education and training, professional ethics, community policing, and use of force. It then goes a step further than traditional texts to cover current topics such as women in policing, minority groups, criminal analysis, and technological changes. The chapters are concise, clearly written, and combine rich frameworks with illustrations drawn from real experience. M. L. Dantzker is an associate professor of Political Science at Georgia Southern University, teaching in the Justice Studies Program, specializing in policing. He received his Ph.D. in Administration from the University of Texas at Arlington. Prior to entering academia full-time, Dr. Dantzker was a police officer in Indiana and in Texas. He has researched, consulted, and published in the areas of police stress, police job satisfaction, educational issues, criminal justice statistics, and police chief requirements. In-depth discussion of today's most important policing topics. Comprehensive coverage of standard law enforcement issues. Compilation of ideas from several well-known academics and scholars.

Policing in Modern Society

Bruce L. Berg, 1999. Draws upon the use of contemporary examples taken from movies, television, and the print media. This instructor's guide includes chapter outlines, chapter objectives, summaries of chapters, key terms from chapters, a test bank consisting of the following types of questions: choice, true and false, matching, and discussion.

Policing: Toward an Unknown Future John Crank, Colleen Kadleck, 2013-12-16. The enclosed papers are the culmination of a project. Dr. John Crank and Dr. Colleen Kadleck carried out assessing issues facing the police into the early 21st century. The papers are future-oriented in the sense that they anticipate trends visible today. Everywhere the contributing scholars found that the organizational concept, practice, and function of the police were undergoing transition. Yet the seeming state-level hardening of the police function was ubiquitous. Two themes were noteworthy. On the one hand, in developing or second-world countries, police face endemic problems of corruption, organized crime, and drugs. Police in response are undergoing centralization and intensification of law enforcement activities. In countries with first-world economies, Canada, the United States, and Australia, contributors discovered trends toward expansion of the police function, a trend described by Brodeur as toward high policing. It reflects the growing reliance on surveillance for crime control and for the tracking of minority, indigenous, and immigrant populations in crime prevention efforts. The results suggest that governments, sometimes encouraged by their citizenry, seem increasingly to rely on the police to deal with a broad array of social as well as criminal problems. This book was originally published as a special issue of Police Practice and Research.

Policing and Training Issues

Michael Palmiotto, 2003. On almost a daily basis somewhere in the United States, a police officer commits an act that often leads to a question of his or her training. After selection, perhaps the most crucial aspect of police officer development is the training. Even the U.S.

Supreme Court has weighed in on this subject by holding that a police agency and its governing body could be sued for a failure to adequately train or for failing to provide training to police officers. Considering the importance of this topic one would think that there would be numerous books on the subject. Yet to date there are a very limited number. Policing and Training Issues is among the first edited works available offering an important array of training topics. In Policing and Training Issues Dr Michael Palmiotto and his co authors have created a textbook that examines some of today's most important training subjects. It begins with an overview of police training throughout police history and includes subjects on academy management, executive training, police corps learning theories and developing skills as well as other specialty subjects such as multicultural training, field training, officers, criminal investigations and community policing. The text concludes with a chapter that integrates all topics covered as well as a look at the future of police training. This new textbook represents an in depth examination of policing and various related training issues through the perspectives of respected academics and practitioners. This textbook will help broaden the reader's understanding of the relationship between the police and their training. Policy Studies Journal, 1972. Policing and Community Partnerships Dennis J. Stevens, 2002. This timely book is a virtual how to manual to help guide the promotion of public safety and the quality of life in American neighborhoods by law enforcement agencies. It reflects a fundamental shift from traditional reactive policing to priorities of prevention through community partnerships. Attempts to bring agencies closer to developing a best model that can at the same time be a successful classroom tool. Offers a comprehensive literature search, includes explanations and links to a practical and theoretical community policing rationale. Presents varied models of community policing and training programs unlike other books which focus exclusively on large departments with many resources such as Chicago, Los Angeles, New York. Provides information on how to write grant proposals for securing federal and local funds to build community policing programs. A valuable tool for justice and law enforcement professionals. International Perspectives on Community Policing and Crime Prevention Steven P. Lab, Dilip K. Das, 2003. This book provides insight on the great diversity in community policing and crime prevention as they appear in countries around the world. Various chapters deal with countries that have established formal professional police forces, are in transition from colonial status to independence, or are emerging democracies faced with the demands associated with major political and social change. All of these efforts are tied together with the recognition that the public needs to be involved in preventing crime. For individuals interested in the concept of community policing and its implications around the globe. Police Organization and Management Vivian Anderson Leonard, Harry W. More, 2000. This work describes the basic tenets of organization theory and applies them to the police setting. It describes the problems of integrating the individual into the organization, responding to change through community policing, motivation, leadership and productivity. Policing and Violence Ronald G. Burns, Charles E. Crawford, 2002. This comprehensive, accurate and timely account of police violence provides readers with a complete understanding of the concept.

and all that it entails covering its history to future directions and ten different areas of police violence Each chapter in the reader addresses police violence as it is used by and against officers and all highly competent contributing authors including both practitioners and academics have a strong background in the various areas Chapter topics examine the research surrounding violent acts the reasons officers feel justified in using excessive force an account of situational factors affecting an officer's likelihood to use or be the victim of violence measurements of deadly force training issues the importance of officer pursuits violence and the community policing philosophy and international rates of violent police citizen encounters and the differences between countries For use in the police academy and by the ACLU citizen action groups and civilian review boards

Race and Criminal Justice Hindpal Singh Bhui, 2008-12-18 The social landscape of race and ethnicity within contemporary Britain has become increasingly diverse and complex The old exclusive research emphasis in criminology on the outcomes of social inequalities and policies is now challenged by an appreciation of how race and ethnicity are constructed and other theoretical perspectives This collection of papers will introduce students to these subjects and do so usefully by addressing contemporary themes that must be given attention by criminologists Professor Simon Holdaway University of Sheffield This collection provides useful and up to date information on the response of police prosecution prisons and probation services to the challenges of increasing ethnic diversity It is an excellent source for students and practitioners concerned with reforming policy and improving practice Professor David J Smith University of Edinburgh London School of Economics This text delivers a comprehensive overview of race and ethnicity across the criminal justice system It unpacks terms such as race diversity and multiculturalism to equip students with a thorough understanding of this complex subject area Featuring chapters by leading experts Race and Criminal Justice provides a specialist introduction to each area of the criminal justice system including police prosecution prisons and probation It also features stimulating discussion of contemporary issues such as criminal justice responses to refugees and asylum seekers and the experiences of Muslims within the criminal justice system post 9 11 and 7 7 Each chapter follows a consistent structure offering an overview of key theories relating to the study of race ethnicity and criminal justice analysis of research policy and practice chapter summaries and further reading to support understanding
