Contesting Politics Women In Ireland North And South:

Contesting Politics Yvonne Galligan, Eilís Ward, Rick Wilford, 1999 This book gathers the expertise of those researching women and politics in Ireland both North and South into a single comprehensive and accessible textbook on the topic Contributors are drawn from both academic and activist arenas to bring a multidisciplinary approach to the subject Contesting Politics examines the central issues of women and the political parties and representation the relationship between the women's movement and community based women's groups in Ireland and women's participation in public bodies and the Northern Ireland Women's Coalition The text will be invaluable in women's studies and Irish studies courses as well as within political science

The Field Day Anthology of Irish Writing Seamus Deane, Andrew Carpenter, Angela Bourke, Jonathan Williams, 1991

Women and Political Violence Miranda Alison, 2009-01-21 This book directly challenges the stereotype that women are inherently peaceable by examining female combatants involvement in ethno national conflicts Drawing upon empirical case studies of Sri Lanka and Northern Ireland this study explores the ways in which women have traditionally been depicted Whereas women have predominantly been seen as victims of conflict this book acknowledges the reality of women as active combatants Indeed female soldiers irregulars are features of most modern conflicts and particularly in ethno nationalist violence until now largely ignored by mainstream scholarship Original interview material from the author's extensive fieldwork addresses why and how some women choose to become violently engaged in nationalist conflicts It also highlights the personal political costs and benefits incurred by such women This book provides a valuable insight into female combatants and is a significant contribution to the literature This book will be of great interest to students of political violence ethnic conflict gender studies and international relations in general

Everyday life after the Irish conflict Cillian McGrattan, Elizabeth Meehan, 2018-07-30 Everyday life after the Irish conflict is the first book to address the specific topic of the intersection of the processes of conflict transformation and devolution with daily life in Northern Ireland in a rigorous and systematic fashion Bringing together new research from established academics new voices and civil society actors this book documents the changes that have occurred in people's everyday lives as the region moves away from a violent past Supported with a wealth of new empirical material the book charts the impact of devolution and conflict transformation in four parts an overview of the changes is followed by chapters that explore the areas of space place and human relations The third part looks at economic and social life while a concluding chapter takes a comparative approach by addressing the differences and similarities between the Northern Irish and Scottish experiences of devolution

Dynamics of Political Change in Ireland Niall Ó Dochartaigh, Katy Hayward, Elizabeth Meehan, 2016-12-19 This book examines the interrelated dynamics of political action ideology and state structures in Northern Ireland and the Republic of Ireland emphasising the wider UK and European contexts in which they are nested It makes a significant and unique contribution to wider European and international debates over state and nation and contested borders looking at the dialectic between political action and institutions examining party politics ideological struggle and institutional change It goes beyond the binary approaches to Irish politics and looks at the deep shifts associated with major socio political changes such as immigration gender equality and civil society activism Interdisciplinary in approach it includes contributions from across history law sociology and political science and draws on a rich body of knowledge and original research data This text will be of key interest to students and scholars of Irish Politics Society and History British Politics Peace and Conflict studies Nationalism and more broadly to European Politics

The Ulster Unionist Party Thomas Hennessey, Máire Braniff, James W. McAuley, Jonathan Tonge, Sophie A. Whiting, 2018-12-13 The Ulster Unionist Party Country Before Party uses unprecedented access to the party that dominated Northern Ireland politics for decades to assess the reasons for its decline and to analyse whether it can recover Having helped produce the Belfast Good Friday Agreement the Ulster Unionist Party UUP struggled to deliver the deal amid unease over aspects of what its leadership negotiated Paramilitary prisoner releases policing changes and power sharing with the republican enemy were all controversial As the UUP leader won a Nobel Peace Prize his party began to lost elections For the UUP leadership acceptance of change was the right thing to do for Northern Ireland a case of putting country before party The decades since the peace agreement have seen the UUP eclipsed by the rival Democratic Unionist Party DUP even though most of what the UUP agreed in 1998 has remained in place This book examines the travails of the UUP in recent times It draws upon the first ever survey of UUP members and a wide range of interviews including with the five most recent leaders of the party to analyse the reasons for its reverses and the capacity to revive The volume assesses why the UUP s still sizeable membership remains loyal and discusses what the UUP and unionism means to those members in terms of loyalty policy national and religious identity views of other parties and what a shared future in Northern Ireland will constitute Amid Brexit and talk of a border poll crises of devolved government rows with republicans and intra unionist tensions how secure and confident does the UUP membership feel about Northern Ireland s future Written by the same expert team that produced an award winning book on the DUP this book is indispensable to understanding parties and political change in divided societies

A Look at Life in Northern Ireland-- how Do Women Live in a Culture Driven by Conflict? Tanya Higgins, Nancy Brown Diggs, 2000 This study written from an anthropological viewpoint focuses on women s lives in Northern Ireland It examines the lives and work of a range of women and illustrates some of the historical and political backdrop It discusses a number of women s initiatives in the voluntary sector to illustrate the work they are doing to achieve a peaceful outcome to the age old problems Interviews were conducted with women ecumenical groups Belfast City Council members Ian Paisley Gerry Adams and human rights activists The book should interest those involved in women s studies peace studies and Irish studies

Contemporary Northern Irish Society Colin Coulter, 1999-10-20 This is a critical overview of the various sources of social and political identity in Northern Ireland The book examines the key variables of sociology status class and gender and in this case ethno religion and explains why ethno religious sentiment has become the principle source of political identity A range of themes are covered the role and status of women the representations of the conflict and peace process in the media sport and the importance of popular music

Women and Public Policy in Ireland Richard B. Finnegan, James L. Wiles, 2005 This book concentrates on Ireland's public policies cases and laws on women after 1922 It examines the policies in place before 1972 and the extensive changes heralded by the 1972 Report of the Commission on the Status of Women equal pay employment and social welfare In the 1980s and 1990s the debate shifted from the formal equality of women to issues of equity fairness opportunity and participation as emphasized by the Report of the Second Commission on the Status of Women 1993 The constitutional issues of divorce and abortion as well as the changes in family law violence education health and political and economic opportunity are tracked through government reports up to 2000

Women, Unionism and Loyalism in Northern Ireland Rachel Ward, 2006 Politically active unionist and loyalist women in Northern Ireland are rendered relatively invisible because of the predominantly male public faces of unionism and loyalism This is evident in the media images of the male dominated annual parades by organisations such as the Orange Order statements by mostly male political party spokespersons and the murals of loyalist paramilitaries that designate territorial possession and seldom depict female involvement The book seeks to counter the stereotype that unionist and loyalist women just make the tea The aim of the book is to shed light on the form and extent of unionist and loyalist women's political participation The research conducted shows that unionist and loyalist women are more active political participants than the tea making stereotype suggests they have varied political roles although these are often invisible Whilst exploring the national and other cross cutting identities held by unionist and loyalist women and the motivations behind their political activity the evidence also suggests that the women have been motivated at least in part by their nationalism However this approach does not fully explain the form and extent of respondents political action apparent from a consideration of comparative figures of women and political participation The book concludes that a greater synthesis with the literature on gender and political participation is needed

Women in Ireland Myrtle Hill, 2003 The 20th century was a time of extraordinary change for the women of Ireland It began with a ferment of agitation for women's rights and continued with the struggle for Home Rule with women engaged on both sides during the Easter Rising the War of Independence and the Civil War Remarkable women emerged from the maelstrom Hanna Sheehy Skeffington Maud Gonne and Constance Markievicz The eruption of civil conflict in the British ruled North in 1969 again divided women among themselves with Bernadette Devlin Mariead Corrigan and Monica McWilliams representing different strands of the struggle

Political Issues in Ireland Today Neil Collins, 1999 This volume covers a wide range of policy areas in the Republic and Northern Ireland It fills a major gap in the academic literature on Irish politics providing a comprehensive introduction to the issues dominating political debates in both parts of Ireland The contributors take a comparative approach to Irish politics first addressing constitutional issues and then discussing public policies This thoroughly revised second edition has new chapters on corruption and ethics and the marketing of public services Journal of Dispute Resolution, 2003 The Failure of the Northern Ireland Peace Process Gary Peatling, 2004 This book is a surprisingly broad study of the Northern Ireland conflict and peace process with an unusual and contentious hypothesis though one ultimately likely to prove useful even to those who disagree with it The book is influenced by a sense of the interlacing nature of political groups and dynamics in Northern Ireland which evinces understanding of though not empathy with even mutually exclusive positions in a way few writers on the Northern question draw out This sense that even groups often portrayed as intransigent find a constituency in Northern Ireland based upon the lived experience of groups and communities is underpinned by the book's view of identity and its consequences The book also addresses much discussed wider controversies such as debates surrounding immigration terrorism and September 11th and national identity It addresses these issues with unorthodox conclusions and it is guaranteed to be of interest to intelligent non specialists as well as to academics and policy makers

Talking Politics Robin Gwendolyn Whitaker, 2001 Women in Parliament Maedhbh McNamara, Paschal Mooney, 2000

Love and Politics Fiona Mackay, 2001 This volume is the first to use insights from recent feminist theory on the ethic of care to study the slow progress women have made toward political equality Using empirical case study materials including her own interviews with female politicians Mackay examines care as both a political practice and a political idea using it to explain the current situation with regard to women's representation and to offer a prescription and resource for change

Changing Women, Changing Worlds Fran Porter, 2002 Seventy interviews with evangelical women in Northern Ireland revealing a remarkable shift from traditional roles to increased involvement in church community and politics Issues in Irish Public Policy George Taylor, 2002 It is growing ever clearer that the Irish policy has experienced profound change over the last ten years The pessimism which prevailed during the 1980s has given way to an overwhelming political enthusiasm explained by the concept of our times the Celtic Tiger Amid the enthusiasm for embracing all that is now particularly Irish it is hardly surprising to find that dissenting voices should be few and far between This intoxicating political elixir formulated around the state's alleged capacity to reconcile economic growth with political consensus is an incredible feat when we consider that it has taken place against a political backdrop of electoral defeats for a succession of coalition governments Although this startling economic growth has been welcomed it seems that the Celtic Tiger has not delivered its financial promises Despite criticism of individual elements of successive budgets the content and ideological stance of policy has received only scant attention Debate on Irish public policy has been conspicuous only by its absence It is this omission which forms the basis for this edited collection The Canadian Journal of Irish Studies, 2006
