Lucas,2021-06-27 Fossils are the remains or even the indications of animals and plants that have through natural agencies been buried in the earth and preserved for long periods of time This may seem a rather meagre definition but it is a difficult matter to frame one that will be at once brief exact and comprehensive fossils are not necessarily the remains of extinct animals or plants neither are they of necessity objects that have become petrified or turned into stone Bones of the Great Auk and Rytina which are quite extinct would hardly be considered as fossils while the bones of many species of animals still living would properly come in that category having long ago been buried by natural causes and often been changed into stone And yet it is not essential for a specimen to have had its animal matter replaced by some mineral in order that it may be classed as a fossil for the Siberian Mammoths found entombed in ice are very properly spoken of as fossils although the flesh of at least one of these animals was so fresh that it was eaten Likewise the mammoth tusks brought to market are termed fossil ivory although differing but little from the tusks of modern elephants Many fossils indeed merit their popular appellation of petrifications because they have been changed into stone by the slow removal of the animal or vegetable matter present and its replacement by some mineral usually silica or some form of lime But it is necessary to include indications of plants or animals in the above definition because some of the best fossils may be merely impressions of plants or animals and no portion of the objects themselves and yet as we shall see some of our most important information has been gathered from these same imprints Nearly all our knowledge of the plants that flourished in the past is based on the impressions of their leaves left on the soft mud or smooth sand that later on hardened into enduring stone Such too are the trails of creeping and crawling things casts of the burrows of worms and the many footprints of the reptiles great and small that crept along the shore or stalked beside the waters of the ancient seas The creatures themselves have passed away their massive bones even are lost but the prints of their feet are as plain to day as when they were first made

Animals of the Past Frederic Augustus Lucas, 1939

Animals of the Past by Frederic A Lucas, 2020-02-26 At the present time the interest in the ancient life of this earth is greater than ever before and very considerable sums of money are being expended to dispatch carefully planned expeditions to various parts of the world systematically to gather the fossil remains of the animals of the past That this interest is not merely confined to a few scientific men but is shared by the general public is shown by the numerous articles including many telegrams in the columns of the daily papers The object of this book is to tell some of the interesting facts concerning a few of the better known or more remarkable of these extinct inhabitants of the ancient world also if possible to ease the strain on these venerable animals caused by stretching them so often beyond their due proportions The book is admittedly somewhat on the lines of Mr Hutchinson's Extinct Monsters and Creatures of Other Days but it is hoped that it may be considered with books as with boats a good plan to build after a good model The information scattered through these pages has been derived from varied sources some has of necessity been taken from standard books a part has been gathered in the course of museum work and official correspondence for much the author is indebted to his personal friends and for a part he is under obligations to friends he has never met who have kindly responded to his inquiries The endeavor has been conscientiously made to exclude all misinformation it is nevertheless entirely probable that some mistakes may have crept in and due apology for these is hereby made beforehand The author expects to be taken to task for the use of scientific names and the reader may perhaps sympathize with the old lady who said that the discovery of all these strange animals did not surprise her so much as the fact that anyone should know their names when they were found. The real trouble is that there are no common names for these animals. Then too people who call for easier names do not stop to reflect that in many cases the scientific names are no harder than others simply less familiar and when domesticated they cease to be hard witness mammoth elephant rhinoceros giraffe boa constrictor all of which are scientific names. And if for example we were to call the Hyracotheerium a Hyrax beast it would not be a name but a description and not a bit more intelligible. Again it is impossible to indicate the period at which these creatures lived without using the scientific term for it Jurassic Eocene Pliocene as the case may be because there is no other way of doing it.

Non-human Animals and People: Interactions, Agents and Materialities Romina Frontini, Paula Escosteguy, Mónica Salemme, 2025-12-31. Animals are agency bearing beings and are able to bond in emotional relationships with people. In these various associations the boundary between human and nonhuman is permeable according to the degree of human animal familiarity. Across time and space humans and nonhuman animals have co modelled their relationships in diverse interspecific interactions. Throughout human history animals have been hunted bred domesticated eaten feared and venerated. This book presents several papers from the symposium Animals and people interactions agents and materialities held in the XXI Congreso Nacional de Arqueología Argentina which took place in Corrientes city Argentina in July of 2023. Through eight chapters authors explore human camelid interactions comprising hunting pastoralism domestication and current management human felids interaction the role of animals in the construction of social identity the configuration of spatial interaction networks at various scales and theoretical issues from a relational approach. These topics are approached from many different materialities and perspectives including zooarchaeological data stable isotope information rock and mobile art current animal management hides and fleece and ethnographic information. The contributions focus on southern South America including northern Chile northwestern Argentina and Argentine Central Patagonia and Pampas regions. This book delves into the complexity of interactions between humans and nonhuman animals and the material derivatives of those relationships. The volume's interdisciplinary perspectives that integrate theoretical proposals and case studies will be references for archaeologists anthropologists and ethnologists examining the interplay among people and nonhuman animals.

The natural history of animals. 8 half-vols James Richard Ainsworth Davis, 1904. Contagious Diseases of Domesticated Animals United States. Department of Agriculture, 1883. Animals as Experiencing Entities Michael J. Glover, Les Mitchell, 2024-03-04. This volume explores the experiences of those with little or no power usually although not exclusively animals. The theme of animals as experiencing entities is what links the chapters and characterises the volume. Broadly each author in this volume contributes in one of two ways. The first group in Section 1 theoretically engages animal subjectivity animal experiences and ways in which these are to some extent accessible and knowable to humans. The second group of authors in Section 2 offer narrative accounts about specific animals or groups of animals and explore to some extent their subjective historical experiences. In summary, the first section diversely theorises about animal experiences while the second section's authors assume animals' subjective experiences and construct narratives that take into account how animals might have subjectively experienced historical phenomena.
