

CAVERNS

A WORLD OF MYSTERY AND BEAUTY

Far beneath the surface of the earth exist miles of passageways, rooms and tunnels with breathtakingly beautiful forms shaped by water and minerals.

Here, it is cold, dark and silent. And here, too, are the grandeur of stalactites and stalagmites, giant rocks and pools, are unusual plants and animals that have adapted to an underground environment.

It is a world awaiting the adventurous, and the author tells of the caverns that may be visited.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

GERALDINE SHERMAN was born in New York State and was raised in the Seattle-Tacoma area of the state of Washington. She and her husband Richard and their son now make their home in Kent, Washington.

About her writing, she says: "I first became interested in writing during my early teens. I used to bring my typewriter outside during summer vacations and type stories while enjoying the outdoors. Although I wrote frequently for my own pleasure, I didn't start writing professionally until a few years ago. It was my local library that introduced me to the world of writing and getting published. I read every book available and then promptly sat down to write. I have had many articles published in both children's and adult magazines as well as children's books on various subjects."
