Reflective Essay: Celebrities

They are everywhere you go. Magazine titles: "OK! – First for Celebrity Gossip!" "HELLO! – The Place for Celebrity News!" Even worse are the articles contained in said 'celebrity bibles': "Hugh Enjoys Family Time" "Sophie Adapts Wardrobe for Baby Bump" "Britney: Should She or Shouldn't She?"

Who actually cares if some actor spends time with his children? At the end of the day, is a spoilt heiress dropping a dress size going to dramatically change your life? Will the world come crashing to an end if a singer books into a rehabilitation centre? Evidently thousands of people do care, or else the magazines (otherwise known as 'rags' due to their meaningless content) would not run – after all, they are only out to make as much money as possible from gullible consumers.

Their lives are a constant stream of headlines, from the most trivial to the most sensational. They are the focus of our attention, the stars of our lives. We follow their every move, their every breath. We are obsessed with them, and they know it. They are the most powerful people in the world, and they use their power to control us. They are the most famous people in the world, and they use their fame to control us. They are the most beautiful people in the world, and they use their beauty to control us. They are the most successful people in the world, and they use their success to control us. They are the most powerful, the most famous, the most beautiful, and the most successful people in the world, and they use their power, fame, beauty, and success to control us.
