Autobiography of Giuseppe Garibaldi Giuseppe Garibaldi,1889 Women and War Bernard A. Cook,2006-05-19 In this unique encyclopedia 120 leading scholars from around the world provide comprehensive treatment of the role of women in war from the first written history to the present This authoritative encyclopedia presents the work of leading scholars from all over the world to give the first detailed coverage of the role of women in wars throughout history Histories of war are typically histories of men great leaders and heroic fighters Yet the roles of women often receive only limited coverage Except for such notables as Joan of Arc traditional histories give short shrift to women as leaders and fighters Similarly the direct

Diana Moore,2021-07-14 This book examines how a group of transnational British Italian women affiliated with the exiled patriots of the Italian Left repurposed traditionally feminine activities such as fundraising gift giving maternity and memory collection to make a substantial contribution to Italian Unification and state building Through their actions Mary Chambers Sara Nathan Giorgina Saffi Julia Salis Schwabe and Jessie White Mario transcended the boundaries of acceptable behavior for middle class women and participated in the broader female emancipation movement By drawing attention to their activities this book reveals how nineteenth century female activists achieved their most revolutionary goals by using conservative domestic or anti Catholic language Adding to the growing understanding of the Italian Risorgimento as a transnational phenomenon it also shows how non Catholic and non Italian women participated in the creation and development of the Italian state Finally the book argues for the continuing importance of religion in both politics and philanthropy throughout the nineteenth century Garibaldi's Defence of the Roman Republic George Macaulay

Trevelyan,1907 The Historic Imaginary Claudio Fogu,2003-01-01 Focusing on both ritual and mass visual representations of history in 1920s and 1930s Italy The Historic Imaginary unveils how Italian Fascism sought to institutionalize a modernist culture of history The study takes a new historicist and microhistorical approach to cultural intellectual history integrating theoretical tools of analysis acquired from visual cultural studies art history linguistics and reception theory in a sophisticated examination of visual modes of historical representation from commemorations to monuments to exhibitions and mass media spanning the entire period of the Italian fascist regime Claudio Fogu argues that the fascist historic imaginary was intellectually rooted in the actualist philosophy of history elaborated by Giovanni Gentile culturally grounded in Latin Catholic rhetorical codes and aimed at overcoming both Marxist and liberal conceptions of the relationship between historical agency representation and consciousness The book further proposes that this modernist vision of history was a core element of fascist ideology encapsulated by the famous Mussolinian motto that fascism makes history rather than writing it and that its institutionalization constituted a key point of intersection between the fascist aesthetization and sacralization of politics The author finally claims that his study of fascist historic culture opens the way to an understanding and re evaluation of the historical relationship between the modernist critique of historical consciousness and the rise of post modernist forms of temporality Garibaldi's Defence of the Roman Catholic Republic George
