Carving Nature:

Carving Nature at Its Joints Joseph Keim Campbell, Michael O'Rourke, Matthew H. Slater, 2011-10-28 Reflections on the metaphysics and epistemology of classification from a distinguished group of philosophers Contemporary discussions of the success of science often invoke an ancient metaphor from Plato's Phaedrus successful theories should carve nature at its joints But is nature really jointed Are there natural kinds of things around which our theories cut The essays in this volume offer reflections by a distinguished group of philosophers on a series of intertwined issues in the metaphysics and epistemology of classification The contributors consider such topics as the relevance of natural kinds in inductive inference the role of natural kinds in natural laws the nature of fundamental properties the naturalness of boundaries the metaphysics and epistemology of biological kinds and the relevance of biological kinds to certain questions in ethics Carving Nature at Its Joints offers both breadth and thematic unity providing a sampling of state of the art work in contemporary analytic philosophy that will be of interest to a wide audience of scholars and students concerned with classification

Carving Nature Frank Fox-Wilson, 2000 Includes how to information for carving two fish a plane leaf bowl a tree frog butterflies and moths a wren a couple of sticks waves a cobra a turtle an otter relief a heron and a formal leaf design Chip Carving Nature Craig Vandall Stevens, 1997 Craig Stevens creates images from nature by using carved shapes and patterns rather than outlining the subject Craig shares his method with other carvers going step by step through the carving process Every carving step for the main project is illustrated with a clear color photograph and a concise description The patterns and a gallery of variations and applications are included

Darwin Machines and the Nature of Knowledge Henry Plotkin, 1997 Learn and survive Behind this simple equation lies a revolution in the study of knowledge which has left the halls of philosophy for the labs of science This book offers a cogent account of what such a move does to our understanding of the nature of learning rationality and intelligence Bringing together evolutionary biology psychology and philosophy Henry Plotkin presents a new science of knowledge one that traces an unbreakable link between instinct and our ability to know Contrary to the modern liberal idea that knowledge is something derived from experience this science shows us that what we know is what our nature allows us to know what our instincts tell us we must know Since our ability to know our world depends primarily on what we call intelligence intelligence must be understood as an extension of instinct Drawing on contemporary evolutionary theory especially notions of hierarchical structure and universal Darwinism Plotkin tells us that the capacity for knowledge which is what makes us human is deeply rooted in our biology and in a special sense is shared by all living things This leads to a discussion of animal and human intelligence as well as an appraisal of what an instinct based capacity for knowledge might mean to our understanding of language reasoning emotion and culture The result is nothing less than a three dimensional theory of our nature in which all knowledge is adaptation and all adaptation is a specific form of knowledge
