Case Of Anna Kavan:

A case of Anna Kavan David Callard, The Case of Anna Kavan D. A. Callard, 1992 Kavan's childhood was marked by an emotionally distant mother and a father who killed himself when she was fourteen. Twice divorced and deeply depressed she coped by taking heroin daily for forty years. Despite her addiction and several suicide attempts Modernism and the Machinery of Madness Andrew Gaedtker, 2017-10-26 This book shows that a distinct form of technological madness emerged within modernist culture transforming much of the period's experimental fiction Vagabond Fictions Carole Sweeney, 2020-11-05 Examines British women's experimental writing in historical contexts 1945-1970. The first detailed literary history of women's experimental writing in post-war Britain. Provides a detailed historical overview combined with close critical readings and complemented by an extensive bibliography of primary and secondary sources. Considers literature in changing cultural and technological contexts of production through the BBC, the Arts Council and avant-garde publishing houses. Offers detailed biographical information on each writer based on original archival research carried out in the British Library and at the Harry Ransom Centre at the University of Texas. Filling in a blank spot in the history of twentieth-century women's writing. Carole Sweeney examines the work of five experimental writers: Anna Kavan, Brigid Brophy, Christine Brooke-Rose, Eva Figes and Ann Quin, whose writing has been neglected in accounts of the development of post-1945 British literature. Each of these writers, Sweeney argues, engaged in diverse formal experiments that challenge the critical commonplace suggesting that after the end of aesthetic modernism the mid-century British novel was characterised by a wholesale return to realism. Avoiding any insistence on a straightforward opposition between literary realism and experimentalism, this study draws upon original archival and biographical material and offers close readings of the creative and critical work of these vagabond writers, demonstrating how they wrote against aesthetic and thematic conventions of their times and negotiated and often repudiated concepts of feminine writing Desperate Housewives, Neuroses and the Domestic Environment, 1945-1970 Ali Haggett, 2015-10-06 Although the figure of the desperate housewife is familiar to us, Haggett suggests that many women in the 1950s and 60s led satisfying lives and that gender roles were very different and were often seen as equal Gestures Alice Butler, Nell Osborne, Hilary White, 2025-01-28 Gestures: A body of work is a cross-disciplinary collection of feminist approaches to gesture that considers the term's complex registers across embodied aesthetic and political scenes. Attending to gestural movements, languages, feelings and communications, the book argues that gestures can unsettle gendered, sexed and racialised relations, norms and affects. Contributors activate the lens of gesture to offer innovative readings of art and literary works from the 1960s onwards and in transnational contexts. Experiments in art writing and autotheory reflect on the entanglement of the body, gesture and feminist practice. The book proposes that gesture be rethought as a mode of feminist practice that includes art writing, performance and theory. Mixing disciplines, forms, genres and voices, these contributions and the book's gestural structure offer a bold intervention into the conventions of critical
