

The Diverse Modes of Conflict-Regulation in Deeply Divided Societies*

SAMMY SMOOHA and THEODOR HANF

ABSTRACT

A review of some contemporary and historical deeply divided societies shows a great diversity of modes of conflict-regulation consisting of variations of partition, violence, domination and accommodation. This wide range of alternatives suggests that unilateral or violent management of communal conflicts is not inevitable.

Four options for dealing with deep internal ethnic conflicts are presented. Partition is suitable only in certain cases where the groups have incompatible nationalisms and they are largely territorially separated. Ethnic democracy combines genuine democratic institutions with ethnic dominance and appears when strong majorities espouse integral, exclusionary nationalisms and a commitment to democracy. Consociational democracy is a compromise which grants equal status and veto power to the constituent groups and hence fits situations of lack of a clear majority or a strong dominant group. A liberal democracy is another mode which is also possible to apply to highly split societies in which large sections of the population deny or wish to diminish ethnic affiliations.

These four options are illustrated by applying them to four high conflict areas: partition to the West Bank and Gaza, ethnic democracy to Israel, consociational democracy to Lebanon and liberal democracy to South Africa.

It is concluded that deeply divided societies differ markedly in the appropriate form of conflict-regulation which varies according to the history and specific patterns of intercommunal relations.

Introduction

IN DEEPLY DIVIDED SOCIETIES the constituent ethnic or racial groups are different in culture, separate in institutions, unequal in power and privilege, or disagreeing on fundamental issues. The potentiality for conflict among them is high and eruptions of disputes and violence are quite common, especially following shifts in power relations and rises in levels of relative deprivation.

Managing and Settling Ethnic Conflicts NA NA, 2016-09-27 Interest in the study of ethnic conflict has grown over the past decade This is partly due to its re emergence in Central and Eastern Europe after the collapse of communism as well as its prolonged and violent manifestation in Sri Lanka East Timor Ethiopia Eritrea the Middle East Corsica and the Spanish part of the Basque country Moreover events in Kosovo and East Timor prompted the international community to engage in controversial and often difficult peace making and peacekeeping operations This collection seeks to explore the issues surrounding this type of conflict Following a theoretical introduction recognized experts in ethno politics provide in depth case studies covering each of the major approaches to conflict management and settlement in different geographic regions The conclusion summarizes the findings and assesses future prospects Thus a comprehensive picture of the state of the discipline emerges alongside an overview of current ethnic conflicts worldwide Nationalism and Conflict Management
Eric Taylor Woods, Robert Schertzer, Eric Kaufmann, 2013-09-13 Ethno national conflict is one of the central issues of modern politics Despite the emergence of approaches to managing it from nation building to territorial autonomy in recent years the application of these approaches has been uneven Old conflicts persist and new ones continually emerge The authors of this book contend that what is needed to drive forward the theory and practice of ethno national conflict management is a more nuanced understanding of ethnicity and nationalism The book addresses this issue by linking theories of ethnicity and nationalism to theories of conflict management Its contributors share a common goal of demonstrating that a nuanced understanding of ethnicity and nationalism can beneficially inform conflict management in theory and practice To do so they analyse both hot and cold conflict zones as well as cases that have been important in the development of the most widely used conflict management models The book is aimed at those interested in the theory and practice of ethno national conflict management as well as the study of ethnicity and nationalism It is well suited for undergraduate and advanced research students experts and policy makers This book was originally published as a special issue of Commonwealth and Comparative Politics Comparative Constitution Making David Landau, Hanna Lerner, 2019 Recent years have witnessed an explosion of new research on constitution making Comparative Constitution Making provides an up to date overview of this

Israel and Palestine John Ehrenberg, Yoav Peled, 2016-07-29 For decades Israeli Jews Palestinians and Israeli Arabs have been engaged in a debate about past history present options and future possibilities Basic questions of citizenship religion political tactics democracy the rule of law and a host of other matters are abandoned revived and modified in an intellectual exchange between representatives of all three communities that is as old as the political conflicts that have marked the region The high stakes intense emotions and meager results of the peace process lend particular importance and salience to these discussions The sophistication of these debates will come as a surprise to many observers who might have concluded that there is no escape from the present impasse and little possibility for a just settlement of the grievous divisions in the region Given the pivotal role of the United States in the Middle East it would be particularly helpful if Americans understanding of the issues went beyond the superficiality that often passes for political discussion and media coverage Whatever the outcome of the discussions currently under way the central commitment of the Oslo Accords to the two state solution has long been the foundation of American diplomacy and is the starting point of Washington's most recent attempt to revive the moribund peace process Important segments of public opinion in the three communities however have started to question the possibility and more importantly perhaps the desirability of a two state solution Their doubts have set in motion a lively and important debate and this book is designed to introduce American readers to the terms of that discussion It features essays by well known Israeli academics both Jewish and Palestinian as well as contributions from non Israeli citizen Palestinian and American scholars It is the first to bring together a wide range of views and perspectives by influential scholars from various disciplines as well as from activists to bear on a very topical subject with international ramifications

The Management of Ethnic Secessionist Conflict Abeyasinghe M. Navaratna-Bandara, 1995 This book contains a ground breaking comparative study and theoretical model of the influence of a Big Neighbour state on the success or failure of the struggle for independence of an ethnic minority in several small states across the globe It is a scholarly yet often dramatic account of the political economic and psychological pressures on the central governments and on terrorist groups and their supporting populations in divided societies

Conflict Management in Divided Societies Stefan Wolff, Christalla Yakinthou, 2013-03-01 This exciting and innovative new textbook takes a multi perspective approach to the study of conflict management in divided societies Offering a wide range of perspectives from the leading experts in the field the work explains conflict management from the viewpoint of the political scientist the constitutional architect the activist and the NGO It examines the philosophies underpinning constitutional design the actors and processes involved and the practicalities of the settlement process combining conceptual and theoretical contributions with empirical case studies In so doing it provides a comprehensive global introduction to the study of conflict management in divided societies Features benefits of the textbook Clearly explains the theories underpinning constitutional design including power sharing liberal consociationalism centripetalism power dividing and territorial solutions Surveys the key actors and processes involved in designing and implementing peace including the evolution of diplomacy in peace making and separate chapters about crafting solutions for divided societies from the perspectives of NGOs the UN EU and AU Explores the realities on the ground with chapters written by activists and practitioners which draw on their experience of working in conflict zones Written in a clear and engaging style this work is essential reading for all students of conflict resolution
