Congestive Heart Failure J. Morganroth,E. Neil

Moore,2012-12-06 About 2 5 million individuals have congestive heart failure in the United States with over 400 000 new cases expected annually Congestive heart failure also is one of the commonest causes for hospital admissions accounting for over 5 million hospital days per year Despite the early recognition of this condition and active medical research into both mechanisms and therapy prognosis continues to remain dismal with less than a 50% expected five year survival In the last decade we have seen many new medical and therapeutic options for patients with congestive heart failure which extend beyond the use of bed rest sodium restriction digitalis and diuretics These include vasodilators of a variety of types including the angiotensin conventional enzyme ACE inhibitors Also many new inotropes are under active investigation both in oral and intravenous forms In March of 1984 a survey of over 5000 physicians was performed under the auspices of the American Heart Association reported in JAOC 8 966 1986 That survey showed that there was no universally accepted definition for congestive heart failure and that a wide spectrum of diagnostic criteria for this common condition existed even among academic cardiologists There was no clear standard as to even the most basic treatment of congestive heart failure For example exercise restriction was recommended by 19% of physicians 31% recommended no change in activity and 50%

either light exercise or an exercise conditioning program
