Perceiving, Acting and Knowing Robert Shaw, John Bransford, 2017-03-27 Originally published in 1977 the chapters in this volume derive from a conference on Perceiving Acting and Knowing held by the Center for Research in Human Learning at the University of Minnesota in 1973 The volume was intended to appeal not just to the specialist or the novice but to anyone sufficiently interested in psychology to have obtained a sense of its history at the time Through these essays the authors express a collective attitude that a careful scrutiny of the fundamental tenets of contemporary psychology may be needed In some essays specific faults in the foundations of an area are discussed and suggestions are made for remedying them In other essays the authors flirt with more radical solutions namely beginning from new foundations altogether Although the authors do not present a monolithic viewpoint a careful reading of all their essays under one cover reveals a glimpse of a new framework by which theory and research may be guided

Sociogenetic Perspectives on Internalization Brian D. Cox, Cynthia Lightfoot, 2013-05-13 The issue of how the external world becomes part of the behavioral repertoire of children has been important to psychology from its very beginning preoccupying theorists from Sigmund Freud to George Herbert Mead But ever since Lev Vygotsky claimed that every function in a child s activity appears first as a process in the social realm between individuals and moves to a process that individual children can accomplish relatively independently there has been increased debate as to exactly how this process of internalization happens In contemporary developmental psychology the process of internalization has become so important that the time is ripe for a book which explicitly addresses the problems it poses Although the chapters in this book deal with age groups from preschool to adolescence and topics from mathematics to storytelling and from taking risks to making moral judgments there is one core question which unifies them all If the growing competence of a child is truly sociogenetic if it truly grows out from is supported by and is dependent upon the social where
