

The North Pole

The North Pole is the most northerly point on Earth that sits in the middle of the Arctic Ocean.

The latitude is 90 degrees north and all lines of longitude meet there.

The depth of the ocean at the North Pole is more than 4,000 metres.

Several species of fish, such as Arctic cod, live at the North Pole, along with a wide variety of birds, like the Arctic tern.

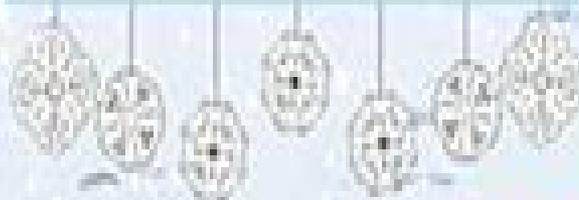

Norway, a Canadian territory, has claimed to the North Pole. Greenland is also close to the pole.

The North Pole is warmer than the South Pole.

The North Pole only experiences one sunrise and one sunset each year, representing 24 hours of sunlight in the summer and 24 hours of darkness in the winter.

No one actually lives at the North Pole. The best live nearby in Canada, Greenland and Russia but the unrelentingly freezing of the North Pole makes it nearly impossible to live there permanently.
