Cattle Trails and Animal Lives Karen M. Morin, 2026-01-15 Cattle Trails and Animal Lives remaps the historical and empirical geography of the emergent cattle industry as a series of carceral sites and nodes in the American West focusing on the experiences of animals living and eventually dying under intense carceral structures practices technologies and tools This work shifts the narratives of the Old West cattle kingdoms from cowboys ranchers and cattle barons to the lived experiences of cattle caught within the rural carceral archipelago of the emergent U S beef industry The work focuses on these animals forced movement over land and sea their experiences lives and agency as formerly free roaming animals who were captured enclosed moved and eventually shipped by railroad to slaughterhouses in Chicago and beyond The spatial nodes and sites of the carceral archipelago include the open range the ranch the cattle trail and the cattle town and the intense human carceral controls enacted within them The work further interprets how these animal lives are culturally renarrated to contemporary audiences through living history sites other touristic and artistic recreations of historic cattle drives Hollywood westerns and museum exhibits featuring material carceral artefacts Together these not only perpetuate heroic myths of the Old West but normalize and even celebrate the carceral experiences of animals

Carceral Logics Lori Gruen, Justin Marceau, 2022-04-14 Carceral logics permeate our thinking about humans and nonhumans We imagine that greater punishment will reduce crime and make society safer We hope that more convictions and policing for animal crimes will keep animals safe and elevate their social status The dominant approach to human animal relations is governed by an unjust imbalance of power that subordinates or ignores the interest nonhumans have in freedom In this volume Lori Gruen and Justin Marceau invite experts to provide insights into the complicated intersection of issues that arise in thinking about animal law violence mass incarceration and social change Advocates for enhancing the legal status of animals could learn a great deal from the history and successes and failures of other social movements Likewise social change lawyers as well as animal advocates might learn lessons from each other about the interconnections of

American agricultural history Cattle raising today is the most widely practiced form of agriculture in Alabama and ranks second only to the poultry industry in terms of revenue Brooks Blevins not only relates the development and importance of the industry to agricultural practices but also presents it as an integral component of southern history inextricably linked to issues of sectional politics progressivism race and class struggles and rural depopulation Most historians believe cattle were first introduced by the Spanish explorers and missionaries during the early decades of the 16th century Native Americans quickly took up cattle raising and the practice was reinforced with the arrival of the French and the British By 1819 after massive immigration of Anglo American herders farmers and planters cattle played an integral role in the territory s agriculture and economy Despite the dominance of the cotton industry during the antebellum period cattle herding continued to grow and to become identified as an important part of the region s agriculture In the early decades of the 20th century the boll weevil drove many planters out of the cotton business These planters adopted a midwestern model of cattle raising consisting of purebred English breeds enclosed pastures scientific breeding and feeding practices and intimate cooperation among cattlemen government agents and business interests This model of farming gradually replaced the open range herding tradition
