

REFLECTIONS OF IMPLICIT AND EXPLICIT BIAS STEMMING FROM THE IAT TEST

After taking the Comfort in Social Setting survey I surprisingly found I hold an implicit bias towards the LGBTQ community or their public displays of affection. The factors and experiences for this unconscious deplorable instinct is based off my psychographics, in particular the my upbringing and my environment instructed me that any female characteristics brought forth by a male was weird. Homosexuality was not condoned in my community. As a youth one of my close friends came out in our first year of highschool. Unfortunately for him the females could not save him because the all of our friends beat my companion till he reached his house. And when his parents came out to see the state of their son, his dad spanked him viciously. Manliness was right and demonstrating a soft side was weak. But if one had threesomes (sexual relations with two females) then you were considered a Mans man. Meaning this norm held within my community was not consistent and unfair against the gay male.

There was absolutely nothing in the Loden s wheel project the would suggest that I held an implicit bias towards homosexual males. The only thing that can be utilized for this assignment is my family ties and the influence they had on me . Although they did not guide me to be antigay, but wearing my mother's shoes was a sure no no. This internal dynamic I unknowingly hold would bring a distorted view to the subject or object of consequence in a criminal justice setting. I more than likely wouldn't have any empathy for the logic or reasoning for the action of the gay male. This would void any judgment or disposition of a matter because of my insidious discriminate discretion. The human element theory makes me unfit to preside over any criminal justice process since the views held would not be solely followed by the the law. Brain Sharp the Atlanta
