

The Establishment of an International Disarmament Fund for Development*

Liviu Bota

United Nations Institute for Disarmament Research (UNDIR), Geneva

Two key existential predicaments weigh heavily today on the international community: the escalating arms race and the growing disparities between the industrial and developing countries. These two phenomena are sources of increasing international tension and conflict. Trying to face their consequences and in search of workable solutions, the United Nations family of nations came to the conclusion that an intimate interrelation exists between the waste of human and material resources on armaments and the dire lack of these resources for development. This relationship logically implies that solutions to this dilemma could be found in the establishment of a functional linkage between disarmament efforts and development efforts. In a nutshell, this is the basic philosophy behind the initiative to create an International Disarmament Fund for Development. The broader aspect of the case is that inherent in this strategy are new vistas for both disarmament and development as well as for beneficial structural changes in international relations, especially as far as peace and security are concerned.

* Preface to Establishment of an International Disarmament Fund for Development published by the United Nations Institute for Disarmament Research (Geneva, November 1984), containing the UNIDIR Report to the U.N. General Assembly on the Establishment of an International Disarmament Fund for Development, and four studies relating to the modalities and institutional aspects as well as discussing a regional approach and the economic and political aims of the Fund.

 Liviu Bota is Director of UNIDIR.

The problems related to the idea of the establishment of an International Disarmament Fund for Development were discussed in some detail in the 1981 Report of the United Nations Secretary-General on The Relationship between Disarmament and Development. In view of the then precarious international situation and a deepening crisis in both disarmament/arms control as well as development efforts, the Report of the United Nations Secretary-General underlined the urgency for new departures in both domains advocating the creation of an International Disarmament Fund for Development.

In the short period that has passed since the elaboration and presentation of the Report of the United Nations Secretary-General, the international situation has deteriorated considerably. The arms race has achieved unprecedented intensity both in the nuclear and the conventional field and tends to expand dramatically from the face of the globe to outer-space. These developments threaten to destabilize dangerously the weak international military equilibrium. In fact, as a kind of a corollary to the invigoration of the race in military technology, strategic arms control negotiations landed in a deadlock.

At the same time, we experience a sustained economic crisis on a global scale hitting especially the developing countries. There is also a stalemate in the North-South dialogue and in efforts to establish a New International Economic Order, to reduce the growing gap between the industrial and developing nations

Documents on Disarmament, 1985, 1989 Documents on Disarmament 1985 United States. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, Documents on Disarmament, 1985, 1989 A Military History of the Cold War, 1962-1991 Jonathan M. House, 2020-09-24 Study of the Cold War all too often shows us the war that wasn't fought. The reality of course is that many hot conflicts did occur some with the great powers weapons and approval others without. It is this reality and this period of quasi war and semiconflict that Jonathan M House plumbs in A Military History of the Cold War 1962-1991 a complex case study in the Clausewitzian relationship between policy and military force during a time of global upheaval and political realignment. This volume opens a new perspective on three fraught decades of Cold War history revealing how the realities of time distance resources and military culture often constrained and diverted the inclinations or policies of world leaders. In addition to the Vietnam War and nuclear confrontations between the USSR and the United States this period saw dozens of regional wars and insurgencies fought throughout Asia Africa and Latin America. Cuba Pakistan Indonesia Israel Egypt and South Africa pursued their own goals in ways that drew the superpowers into regional disputes. Even clashes ostensibly unrelated to the politics of East West confrontation such as the Nigerian Biafran conflict the Falklands Malvinas War and the Indonesian occupation of East Timor involved armed forces weapons and tactics developed for the larger conflict and thus come under House's scrutiny. His study also takes up nontraditional or specialized aspects of the period including weapons of mass destruction civil military relations civil defense and control of domestic disorders. The result is a single integrated survey and analysis of a complex period in geopolitical history which fills a significant gap in our knowledge of the organization logistics operations and tactics involved in conflict throughout the Cold War.

Arms Control by Committee George Bunn, 1992-08-01 This book is essentially a series of case histories of U S Soviet nuclear arms control negotiations as seen from the American side. It describes the processes of governmental decisionmaking for arms control in Washington D C and the techniques for joint U S Soviet decisionmaking at the negotiating table. As general counsel of the U S Arms Control and Disarmament Agency and member of U S delegations to disarmament conferences for eight years the author was in a unique position to assess the difficulties of fashioning an arms control treaty that could pass muster within the executive branch of the U S government be approved by U S allies be successfully negotiated with the Soviets and then win the approval of the U S Senate. This process will be even more complex now that the United States will face at least four nuclear powers from the former U S S R. The book has three purposes. The first is to add to the recorded history of the following negotiations the Limited Test Ban Treaty of 1963 the Non Proliferation Treaty of 1968 the ABM Treaty of 1972 and its companion SALT Interim Agreements and the 1987 INF Treaty. The author asks in each case What did the president and his assistants do or fail to do to negotiate a successful agreement. The second purpose is to use the case book approach common in law schools and business schools as a teaching device for those who wish to learn how the American government made decisions about arms control negotiations how U S Soviet negotiators reached decisions and what the results of the decisions have been The book s third purpose is to generalize about what works and what does not work in the complex world of arms control negotiations including information on the impact of negotiating committees and comparisons of the process for negotiating arms control treaties with that for achieving arms limits through action and reaction without written agreement The concluding chapter looks to the future What changes will occur in the arms control process given the end of the Cold War and the disintegration of the Soviet Union
