Beyond Grade Inflation:

Beyond Grade Inflation: Grading Problems in Higher Education Shouping Hu, 2005-05-18 As calls for accountability of student learning intensify colleges and universities need to reexamine their grading practices and restore public confidence in college grades This report presents a conceptual framework that can aid in understanding the complexity of grading problems in higher education It takes into account individual course grading philosophy students choice of coursework changes in composition of the faculty and changes in the student population among other factors The conceptual framework helps professionals to understand that grading practices need to be examined at multiple levels not just in the aggregate at the institutional and national levels Practices and problems vary by discipline institutional type faculty rank and other such conditions The framework also provides advice about where policymakers and leaders can target efforts state aid policy and other areas where they can have little or no impact student demographic shifts Capitalizing on the knowledge that senior faculty have related to grading this monograph examines changing institutional practices fluctuations in departmental and school norms and various strategies for grading It argues for the need for institutional policies related to grading and more discussion on campuses about standards and norms The primary message of this monograph is that grading is a shared responsibility among members of the institution and external players such as accreditation bodies state governments and boards of trustees Systematic work across these various groups is necessary to change the context that rewards lenient grading This is Volume 30 Issue 6 of the ASHE Higher Education Report series published by Jossey Bass An Imprint of Wiley Life beyond Grades, Life beyond Grades Martin V. Covington, Linda M. von Hoene, Dominic J. Voge, 2017-07-25 This book raises the question of whether or not educators can promote intrinsic motivation among college students when they seem overwhelmingly focused on grades Indeed can there be life beyond grades The answer is Yes A love of learning can coexist even thrive in the face of competing pressures from grades Drawing on recent ground breaking classroom research the authors articulate a new understanding of the causes of the stalemate between intrinsic and external motivation so that a reconciliation between them can be achieved Then the authors apply a powerful set of motivational and pedagogical principles to lay out a step by step blueprint for designing and teaching college courses that promote intrinsic motivation as a primary educational goal in its own right above and beyond knowledge and skill acquisition This practical blueprint draws on authentic case study examples from a variety of subject matter disciplines Moving Beyond Grades to Purposeful Learning David Wei Loong Hung, 2023-09-14 This book explores future directions in Singaporean education as it moves beyond its historically formative goals of survival efficiency and performance and its emphasis on grades and formal credentialing It examines the future of education via the 4Life framework a four form model for purposeful learning centered around social emotional regulation and the well being of the individual learner Life long learning the learning that occurs over a learner s lifespan Life deep learning a deep understanding of learned content and adaptive expertise Life wide learning learning in multiple contexts besides the school environment and Life wise learning learning which focuses on the learner s values morals character and historical empathy This book also illustrates how purposeful learning serves to equip learners with the knowledge skills dispositions and competencies they need to thrive as adaptive workers in the economy of the future Science & Engineering Education for the 1980's & Beyond ,1980 "I Love Learning; I Hate School"

Susan D. Blum,2016-01-13 Frustrated by her students performance her relationships with them and her own daughter s problems in school Susan D Blum a professor of anthropology set out to understand why her students found their educational experience at a top tier institution so profoundly difficult and unsatisfying Through her research and in conversations with her students she discovered a troubling mismatch between the goals of the university and the needs of students In I Love Learning I Hate School Blum tells two intertwined but inseparable stories the results of her research into how students learn contrasted with the way conventional education works and the personal narrative of how she herself was transformed by this understanding Blum concludes that the dominant forms of higher education do not match the myriad forms of learning that help students people in general master meaningful and worthwhile skills and knowledge Students are capable of learning huge amounts but the ways higher education is structured often leads them to fail to learn More than that it leads to ill effects In this critique of higher education infused with anthropological insights Blum explains why so much is going wrong and offers suggestions for how to bring classroom learning more in line with appropriate forms of engagement She challenges our system of education and argues for a reintegration of learning with life The Routledge International

Meyer,2006-08-11 This report analyzes and summarizes the current literature about online learning s costs using a framework developed by the author that helps disentangle cost influences across various research studies for example finding the intersection where research on students enlightens costs related to delivery What do we know about achieving cost efficiencies through online learning Quite a bit as it turns out if you know how to interpret the data Development is more expensive than delivery development is where cost efficiencies are made possible delivery is where those cost efficiencies occur and infrastructure is a barrier but also essential This is volume 32 number 1 of the ASHE Higher Education Report Time for Results: Task Force on College Quality ,1986 The Southern Business & Economic Journal ,1990 Reinventing Undergraduate Education Shouping Hu,Kathyrine Scheuch,Robert A. Schwartz,Joy Gaston Gayles,Shaoqing Li,2008-02-11 Engaging undergraduate students in research and creative activities has been advocated as an innovative strategy to promote student learning in higher education This monograph systematically synthesizes the literature to provide both conceptual and empirical evidence to demonstrate the effects of such engagement on student learning and development from higher education Student engagement in research and creative activities during the college years is associated with a variety of outcomes in both the cognitive and affective domains The evidence also points out that colleges and universities can make a difference in undergraduate engagement in research and creative activities The authors provided various examples of how different types of institutions integrate inquiry oriented activities in the curriculum institutionalize research supportive programs and foster a campus culture that values inquiry based undergraduate education This is the fourth issue in the 33rd volume of the Jossey Bass series ASHE Higher Education Report Each monograph in the series is the definitive analysis of a tough higher education problem based on thorough research of pertinent literature and institutional experiences Topics are identified by a national survey Noted practitioners and scholars are then commissioned to write the reports with experts providing critical reviews of each manuscript before publication
