The Dobe Ju/'hoansi, 2015 Human Ecology Daniel G. Bates, Judith Tucker, 2010-03-29 This book arose from the need to develop accessible research based case study material which addresses contemporary issues and problems in the rapidly evolving field of human ecology Academic political and indeed public interest in the environmental sciences is on the rise This is no doubt spurred by media coverage of climate change and global warming and attendant natural disasters such as unusual drought and flood conditions toxic dust storms pollution of air and water and the like But there is also a growing intellectual awareness of the social causes of anthropogenic environmental impacts political vectors in determining conservation outcomes and the role of local representations of ecological knowledge in resource management and sustainable yield production This is reflected in the rapid increase of ecology courses being taught at leading universities in the fast growing developing countries much as was the case a decade or two ago in Europe and North America The research presented here is all taken from recent issues of Human Ecology: An Interdisciplinary Journal. Since the journal itself is a leading forum for contemporary research, the articles we have selected represent a cross section of work which brings the perspectives of human ecology to bear on current problems being faced around the world. The chapters are organized in such a way to facilitate the use of this volume either to teach a course or to introduce an informed reader to the field.

Human Adaptive Strategies
Daniel Bates, Judith Tucker, Ludomir Lozny, 2023-05-31
This book introduces students to cultural anthropology with an emphasis on environmental and evolutionary approaches focusing on how humans adapt to their environment and how the environment shapes culture. It shows how cultures evolve within the context of people's strategies for surviving and thriving in their environments. This approach is widely used among scholars as a cross disciplinary tool that rewards students with valuable insights into contemporary developments. Drawing on anthropological case studies, the authors address immediate human concerns such as the costs and consequences of human energy requirements, environmental change and degradation, population pressure, social and economic equity, and planned and unplanned change. Impacts of increasingly rapid climatic change on equitable access to resources and issues of human rights are discussed throughout. Towards the end of the book, the student is drawn into a challenging thought experiment addressing the possible impacts of climatic warming on Middle America in the year 2040. All chapters conclude with Summary, Key Terms, and Suggested Readings. This book is an ideal text for students of introductory anthropology and archaeology, environmental studies, world history, and human and cultural ecology courses.

Processual Archaeology
Amber Johnson, 2004-11-30
Processual archaeologists seek to explain variability in the static archaeological record we observe in the present as a necessary first step toward learning how to learn about the operation of cultural dynamics in the past. The approach is a diverse and productive one that focuses on developing learning strategies. Researchers pursuing processual archaeology have already discovered a great deal about the archaeological record and about past dynamics, and there is a huge potential for building on the foundation laid thus far. The contributors to this volume provide clearly written research articles that are easily accessible to upper level undergraduates and professional archaeologists. Although the papers do not focus on a single region, time period, or domain of observation, e.g. settlement patterns or lithics or site structure, they are integrated by shared goals for archaeology. This book clearly demonstrates that processual archaeology, far from having been replaced by post processual archaeology, is becoming more and more powerful as our analytic sophistication and knowledge of the archaeological record grow.

Beyond War
Douglas P. Fry, 2009-04-10
A profoundly heartening view of human nature. Beyond War offers a hopeful prognosis for a future without war. Douglas P. Fry convincingly argues that our ancient ancestors were not innately warlike and neither are we. He points out that for perhaps ninety nine percent of our history, for well over a million years, humans lived in nomadic hunter and gatherer groups, egalitarian bands where warfare was a rarity. Drawing on archaeology and fascinating recent fieldwork on hunter gatherer bands from around the world, Fry debunks the idea that war is ancient and inevitable. For instance, among Aboriginal Australians warfare was an extreme anomaly Fry also points out that even today when war seems ever present the vast majority of us live peaceful nonviolent lives We are not as warlike as we think and if we can learn from our ancestors we may be able to move beyond war to provide real justice and security for the world Chronicling Cultures Robert V. Kemper, Anya Peterson Royce, 2002-04-23 Description of methods used in long term anthropological field projects some extending over half a century Visit our website for sample chapters The Yanomamo + the Dobe Ju / Hoansi, 4th Ed. + the Trobrianders of Papua New Guinea Napoleon A.
